And it grows and grows, from a dent in the earth to an intricate skeleton of steel to a total structure.
Students witness every phase of glory and ugliness, watching progress even through three feet of snow. In sight, in sound, in frustration, in anticipation, construction controlled the year.

An artist paints freshness;
calendar printers assemble a new year. Boys invent original cafeteria mischief;
an orientation party welcomes fresh faces to the school.

A new structure and a new educational system take shape.

Learning and building both require intricate planning.

Careful strategy in football, precision in physics, exactness in industrial arts, and foresight in construction
pay off with victory, knowledge, and an educational revolution.

Student life becomes a scatter of symbols, each a tradition. The blazing fireplace recalls the warmth of Christmas.
Memories of pompons,
homeroom, and last-minute assignments keep the new

Students consider the words of teachers, authors, peers, society. The maze of questions leads toward truth.

Blueprints become real with a workman's explanation.
Yamo satirizes psychoanalysis,
but students learn to dissect especially to each other.

They stand up confidently to promote their views.
Explication enlightens
the open mind.

Team members await their turns on the field.
 Willie Wildkit grins; the

To Achieve Purpose, Order, Beauty

Dr. Lloyd S. Michael, Superintendent-Principal

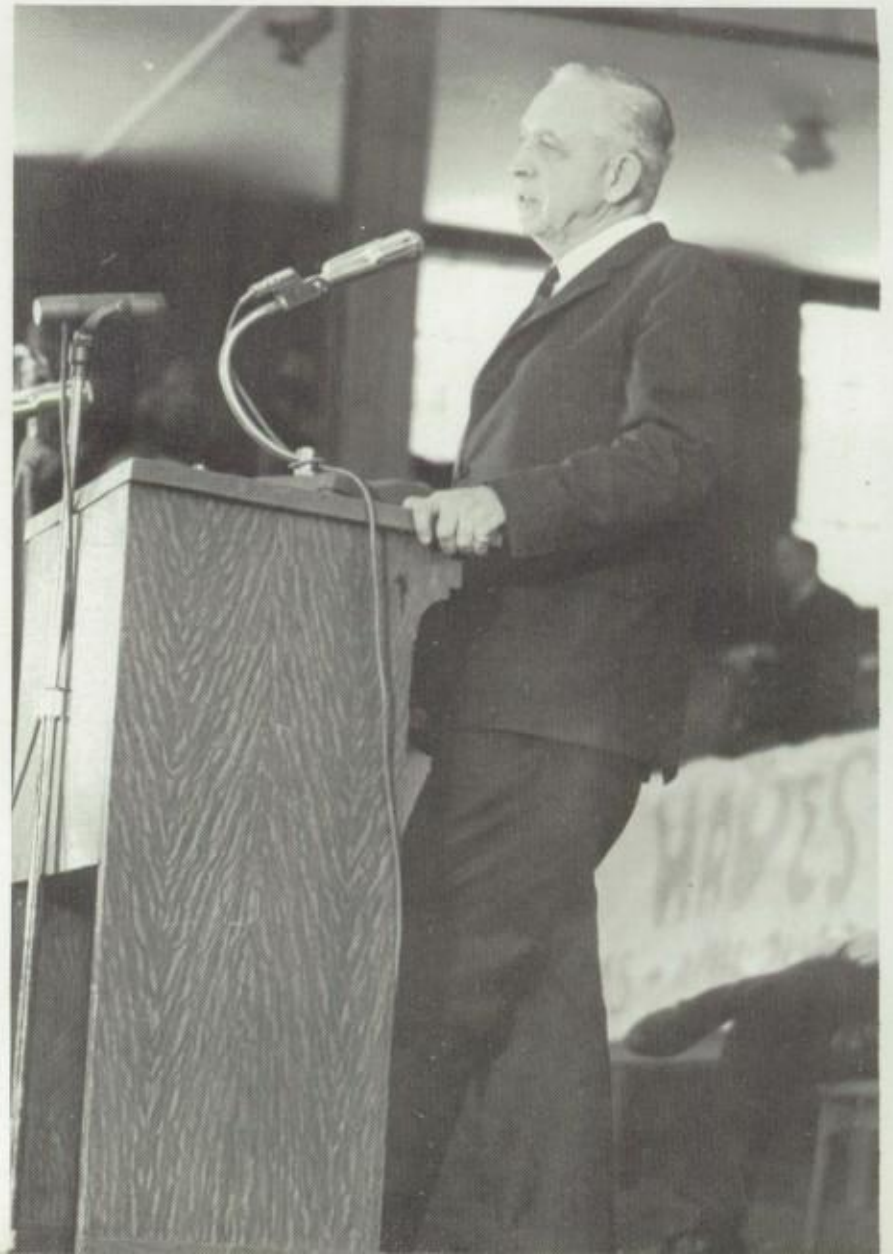

This school year can probably best be characterized as a time of physical expansion and plant construction. It could be unfortunate, however, if our thinking were only in terms of blueprints, bricks, stone, steel and spaces.

The architects and the staff are much more concerned about the individuals who will be served by these new facilities. We are vitally interested in making the school a place the student looks forward to entering, and one he, including seniors, regrets leaving. The builder and the educator want a school building that is sensitive to the needs of the teachers and students who use it, one that serves the physical functions demanded of it, and one that has been planned with the understanding that a good environment is conducive to learning.

To design for learning is to achieve purpose, order and beauty and to make them accessible to those who teach, as well as those who learn. An investment in physical facilities is an investment in education to the degree that they contribute to the full development of each student's potential.

L. Michael

Dr. Michael addresses the student body in Beardsley Gymnasium at the second semester opening assembly.

Administrators Direct Construction Program

Overcrowding reached a peak this year with 4,700 students squeezing into facilities for 3,500. At the same time, additions to ETHS were being constructed to accommodate 6,000. The administration was faced with maintaining Evanston's high educational standards while directing major school changes.

The split into four semi-independent schools took place officially in December when District 202 approved a second referendum, for $6.8 million. The first bond issue passed in January 1965 allotted $8.2 million for expansion.

More funds were needed due to 30 per cent increases in material and labor costs, changes in the Illinois Life Safety Code, and additional area in construction plans.

Part I of the referendum covered the remodeling of the original building, additions to the technical arts wing and the boys and girls physical education facilities, and the construction of South School. Air-conditioning and expansion in the Music Department were included in Part II.

Flexible modular scheduling will be a major ETHS innovation next year. Students operating on a typical day of 21 twenty-minute modules may have 30 per cent free time. Teachers and counselors will be more accessible. Much of the material normally covered in class may be researched independently.

In charge of this educational revolution were Dr. Lloyd S. Michael, supt.-principal, and Dr. J. Floyd Hall, assistant superintendent. The death of Assistant Principal Robert Bowers in September was a loss to the administrative organization.

Mr. Edward Curry served as principal in East School; Dr. Daniel Cagle replaced Dr. Harold Patterson in North School; Dr. James Elliott replaced Mr. Walter Rasmussen in South School; and Dr. William Schreiner served in West School. Their respective assistants were Mr. Glenn Eigenbrodt, Mr. Charles Thomas, Mr. Robert Trevarthen, and Mr. Ronald Walden.

East School homeroom directors were Mr. Glenn Eigenbrodt, 204; Mr. James Slagle, 224; Mr. Norval Henn, 124; and Mr. Leo Samuelson, 104.

Homeroom directors in North School were Mr. Murney Lazier, 224; Mr. Charles Thomas, 204; Mr. Jack Tosh, 104; and Mr. Robert Alexander, 124.

In South School, homeroom directors were Mr. Carlyle Ehri, 244; Mr. Robert Trevarthen, 264; Mr. Walter Satterthwaite, 164; and Mr. David Cameron, 144.

West School homeroom directors were Mr. Henry Bischoff, 264; Mr. James Nelson, 244; Mr. Kenneth Hurlbut, 144; and Mr. Ralph Potter, 164.

History of Art student Ann Cardiff examines the library's collection of 17th century reproductions.

Sue Kopstein studies Gregorian Chant notation for a research paper for 4 English I, a class for fine arts students.

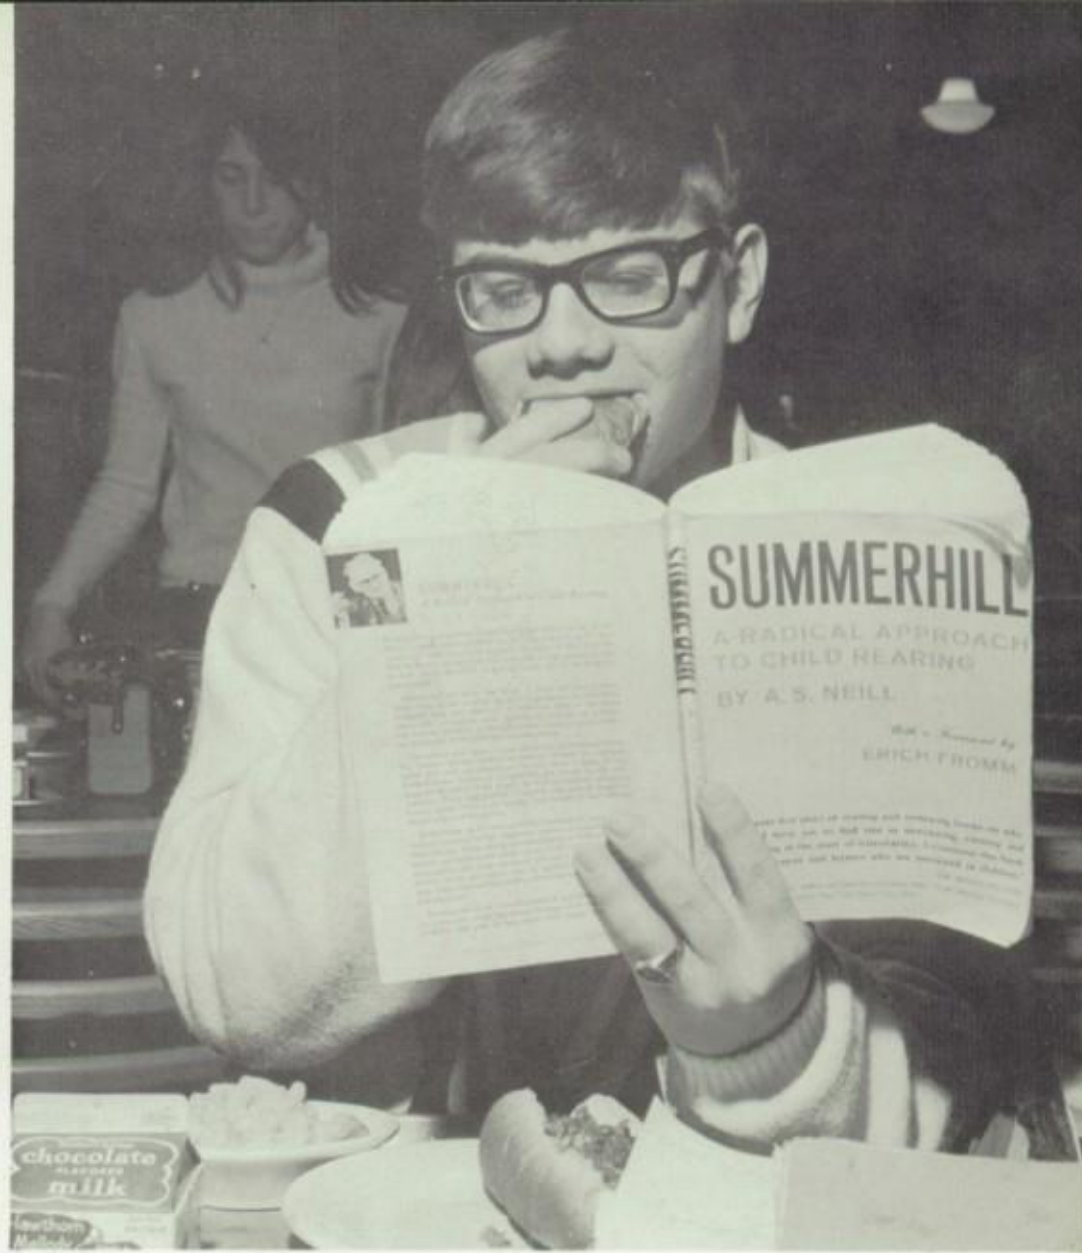

Ken Drake utilizes a polygraph to test the viscosity of mercury. Ken developed his research in conjunction with his Math-Science Seminar class and the Westinghouse Talent Search, in which he was among 300 semi-finalists.

Independent Study

Nancy Jones studies a documentary account of 19th century progressivism for Mr. Alan Mumbrue's 3 U.S. History H class, whose students meet for an occasional lecture or discussion but are otherwise free to seek the atmosphere most conducive to serious study.

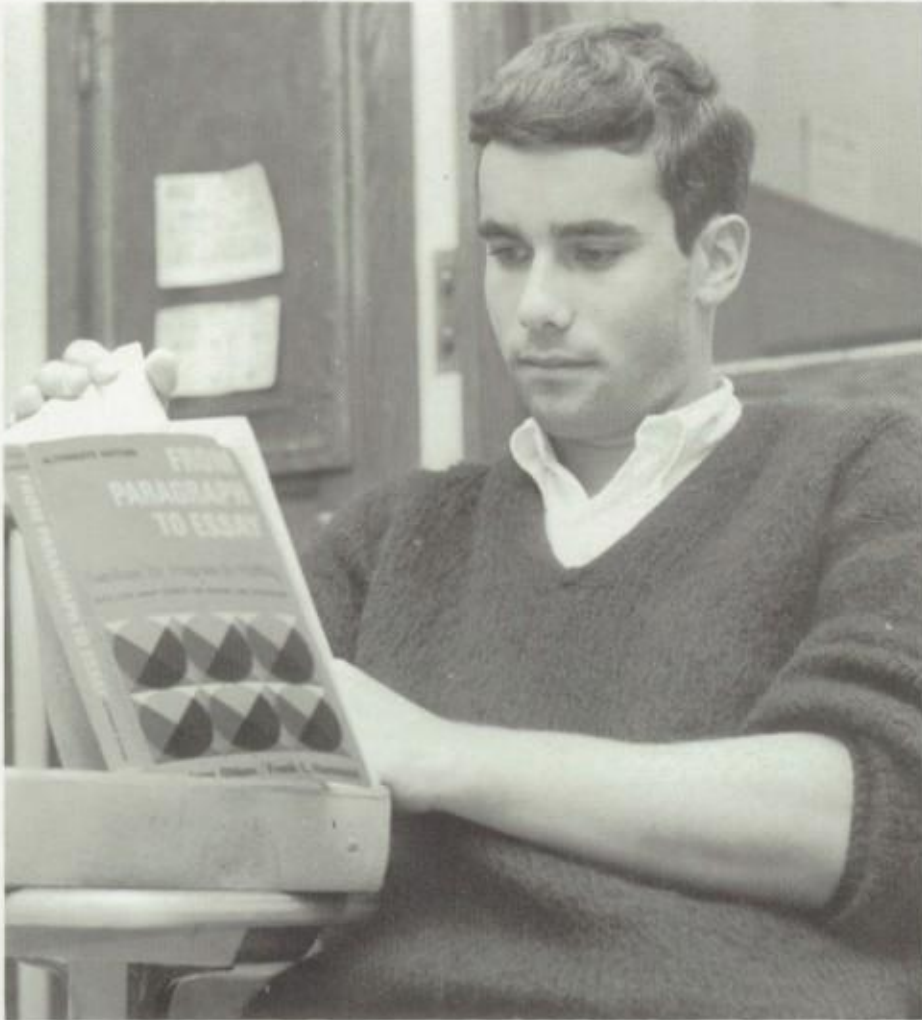

Mark Antman makes good use of "Freedom Day" during his fifth period 4 English T class.

Dave Suber, also a Westinghouse semi-finalist, applies theories learned in his Senior Math CL class to his independent research project on prime number generating equations.

English Emphasizes Independence

Stuart Zindell refers to a passage on paragraph construction during a discussion in Mrs. Marilyn Kemp's 4 English Composition class.

Despite the "language barrier" of construction noise the English Department did not allow itself to slip from among the top high school English departments in the nation.

To insure a smooth transition into next year's facilities, including hall resource centers, the department emphasized independent learning. Considering individual strengths and weaknesses of all pupils, the department personalized the approach and broadened the possibilities for learning.

For those gifted in one or more arts, 4 English I integrated music, art, dance, and drama with literature in independent study. Members of the class meet once a week in general session, twice weekly in seminars, and occasionally for field trips to plays, operas, ballets, recitals, and concerts. Two sections of 4 English H also experimented with the independent approach convening only certain days of the week and regularly splitting into groups.

The four-year program in linguistics, initiated last year, was expanded this season. Fourteen above-average freshman sections learned transformational-generative grammar based on linguistic intuition, in addition to an introductory language-dictionary unit at all levels. Sophomores then specialized in lexicography and lexicology, juniors in dialectology, and seniors in language history.

Many teachers had to relearn grammar and linguistics before beginning to instruct with the new approach. Hopefully students will learn to regard their language as the "vehicle of their culture" and the "foundation of their humanity." The English Department also planned a formal unit on the film as an art form for next year's juniors and seniors.

Videotapes Used By Social Studies

An expansion in teaching resources and course offerings in the Social Studies Department accompanied the construction program of ETHS. The social studies materials center filed and distributed instructional aids including maps, books, and transparencies. The utilization of audio-visual equipment was increased by planning and advanced ordering of films and other audio-visual aids.

Experimental work in recording lessons on videotape was undertaken by faculty members. Instruction in specialized subject areas was featured, including a taped introduction to the Soviet Union for History of Civilization courses. A revision of the department exams in these courses marked a new program in test improvements.

The team-teaching program was expanded with an English-History course for freshman students with special learning difficulties. Four courses added to the summer school curriculum were Problems of Culture Groups in America, The City in American Life, American Business and Economic History, and Twentieth Century Russia.

A new course in Negro Heritage offered students insight into the history and the peace of the Negro in America. In all courses, an emphasis was placed on the humanities and the teaching of basic economic concepts.

A program of increased independent study opportunities, limited class time, and small-group discussions was demonstrated in another new course, Seminar in the Non-Western World. The department planned to extend the program to regular classes with the anticipated increase of class space and research facilities.

Combined Studies Notes Philosophies

Miss Mary Thilman consults with a committee of 2 Combined Studies students.

As the Combined Studies Department prepared to switch to the modular schedule system, it de-emphasized classroom recitation to allow more time for individualized study programs. The stress on leadership was maintained through student-run reading, writing, dramatics, and fine arts committees that planned and coordinated the units of work.

A four-year program of language study, begun last year with the incorporation of transformational-generative grammar in 1 Combined Studies Team, was extended to include units on the dictionary, the history of the English language, and modern usage. Newest linguistic concepts, such as language as a conveyor of culture, were introduced.

Senior classes adopted the study of economics and contemporary philosophies for the second year. All possible and unlikely resources were explored: periodicals, such as "Business Week" and the "Wall Street Journal;" and Sartre's "The Well" to examine existentialism; and warrior haikus in connection with Zen Buddhism.

Term analysis modernized the department's approach to composition. It describes the formal procedure of dividing into its component parts the problem that is to be solved in a theme assignment.

Introduction to Cultural Anthropology successfully finished its second summer school season. It dealt with man as a social and evolutionary being, united and divided by cultural elements—customs, ideals, laws, religion—and the hereditary processes of evolution.

Mr. William Guelcher listens as freshmen discuss an aspect of clear thinking in 1 Combined Studies.

Foreign Languages Accent Literature,

Culture received a new emphasis this year in the Foreign Language Department with additional films, new textbooks, and displays.

New slides and a corresponding script on Spain, the Balearic Islands, and the Canary Islands supplemented the text's cultural information in certain 3 Spanish classes. Miss Betty McLeod, Spanish instructor, planned and edited these new curriculum additions during her travels last summer through Spain.

Other classes inspected pottery, rugs, and artwork brought by students and teachers from recently visited foreign countries.

"Learning French the Modern Way," the new textbook for first-year French students, also featured a cultural context. It was adopted this year in cooperation with elementary and junior high schools to provide a seven-year sequence of the language, grades six through 12. When the accelerated sixth graders enter high school, they will be prepared to tackle second-year work.

"Dial-a-language" laboratory, in its second year, was available for class and individual use in most of the foreign languages offered. Over 120 tapes, some made by ETHS faculty members, helped students improve their audio-lingual skills. Speech correction, business education, and speech arts teachers were also able to take advantage of the lab.

Distinctive to Evanston was its broad selection of languages offered: Russian, Italian, Japanese, Chinese, Greek, Latin, German, French, Spanish, and English for Foreign Students. Exposure to literature was provided in each sequence program to insure a student fuller acquaintance with his selected language.

With classes ranging from fundamental math to college calculus, the ETHS Mathematics Department offered an appropriate course to each of the 3,500 students involved in its program. New courses this year included 1 Introduction to Algebra and 2 Introduction to Algebra, which expanded material originally presented in 1 Algebra.

Computer Application, a new semester course, stressed the scientific and mathematical aspects of computers. Computer programming was taught in the ETHS summer school computer course. Several students attended seminars at various universities where they broached other fields of mathematics.

Already equipped with three portable desk calculators, the department planned to install a calculator and a computer in each of the four anticipated math laboratories. Equipment for making models and research material would also be available for student use.

Following the independent study projects initiated two years ago, the department encouraged study projects and research in depth of a specialized field while planning a shift towards more individualized instruction.

Science Institutes Modified Teaching

The prospect of 23 new labs and new equipment heightened the Science Department's activities this year. As the new began to replace the old, modified teaching techniques emphasizing first-hand investigation and evaluation of scientific problems were evolved.

Completed first, the North Hall annex included unique features. An intensive training lab installed for slow-paced work included carrels and a large workshop area for programmed learning. Providing an environment with controlled light and heat for living plants and animals, a vivarium was built into the science wing.

Labs combining the facilities of laboratory classroom, and project workshop were planned to allow flexible scheduling. Other major installments included an extensively-equipped research lab for Westinghouse projects, separate CL chemistry, biology, and physics labs, a special seminar room, and staff offices.

Adapting to the already changing set-up, faculty and students anticipated the alleviation of overcrowded conditions and the merging of lab and classroom days. Apart from the building program, the department found time to donate science texts to Xavier High School in the Caroline Islands.

Responding to student request, another geology class was added to the department's curriculum. Realizing a goal to demonstrate the extensions of scientific methods into other fields, Creative Thought and Math-Science Seminar was offered to gifted students.

Resource Center Aids Speech Arts

Preparing for the new plan of the school, the Speech Arts Department instituted programs of change and innovation. A resource center enabled speech students to do research, rehearse speeches and TV productions, and practice diction independently. Students in the newly established Public Speaking Honors class became especially familiar with the center to instruct other students in its use.

Through simultaneous scheduling, drama, art, and music classes met together. In an exchange of artistic knowledge, speech arts students widened their experience, ultimately to learn to better express themselves. Debate tournaments, interscholastic speech competition, and ETHS productions enabled students to demonstrate and develop their proficiency in speech.

This year, full scale hall productions resulted in a greater degree of student participation. South, East, North, and West Halls performed "Teahouse of the August Moon," "Rebel Without a Cause," "You Can't Take it With You," and "Charley's Aunt" respectively. The all school productions were "110 in the Shade" and "Inherit the Wind."

Preliminary acting experience in the little theater was open to students in the newly formed Debut Theatre. Debate, dramatic arts, oral interpretation, and effective speaking provided a concentrated study in specialized areas of speech.

The newest addition to the Music Department this year was the 28-member freshman Cadet Orchestra, serving as preparatory musical experience for the Symphony Orchestra. A special January concert featured the senior orchestra, which also played at commencement exercises, the spring musical, and four other concerts.

The ETHS Marching Band merged with the Concert Band for the annual winter band concert and spring concert. Various sports events highlighted the brass, woodwind, and percussion instrumentalists of the Cadet Band.

One of 14 American high schools experimenting with an ensembles program, ETHS achieved 100 per cent participation. By maintaining a small size, these vocal and instrumental ensembles encouraged the development of individual musicianship.

Boys in Troubadours and Mastersingers and girls in Madrigals and Girls' Choir learned the techniques of group singing as well as expanding their musical background.

Theory courses like Survey of Music and Harmony acquainted serious students with concepts of rhythm, time, form, and style. Music was considered as a cultural, social, and historical entity. Advanced Harmony students performed their own compositions at a special concert.

Cathy Loewenthal, Christine Hustad, and Sally Wahlquist sing excerpts from Handel's "Messiah" in Mr. Donald Stromberg's Advanced Girls' Chorus.

Art Reorganizes Honors Courses

Artist-in-residence adjusts the pose of Carolyn Anderson.

More classes, new courses, and increased opportunities for students highlighted the Art Department this year. Tackling the problems of overcrowding, the department increased the number of classes while limiting their size for a workable division of materials and instruction.

Replacing the independent study courses, Art Honors Junior and Senior, Design Honors, and Painting Honors were introduced into the art curriculum. The courses provided more specialized studies while accommodating superior student talent and individual projects. Background courses included 1 Art, 2 and 3 Dimensional Design, Drawing, and Painting.

For students desiring to enlarge their art studies, the department encouraged interest in numerous scholarships to other art schools. Including the Chicago Art Institute's courses of study, the scholarships were open to all talented students. Student works at ETHS were displayed on the walls and in the showcases of the art corridor.

Participating in suburban contests, the department sponsored its own and the West Hall purchase prize art contests. A criteria called the 100-point system was developed for judging the contest entries for color, line, texture, movement, and makeup.

The fullest possible physical and social development of each individual boy was the prime concern of the Boys Physical Education Department this year.

The special adaptive gym class, for instance, presented a modified curriculum for physically handicapped and post-operative students. The latter boys were benefitted with a rehabilitation program as well. Standards were set according to the specific needs and limits of the individual.

To keep students fit all year, the department ran periodic testing of overall physical condition. A certain number of chin-ups, push-ups, sit-ups, and other vigorous exercises was required. Boys were evaluated on a comparative basis and top achievers were noted.

Major emphasis in freshman and sophomore classes was placed on the fundamental rules and skills of various team sports such as baseball, basketball, football, and soccer. Upperclassmen developed their abilities in carry-over sports, those of individual skill rather than team coordination, including archery, badminton, handball, and tennis.

Girls Physical Education Expands

Expanding its curricular and intramural program, the Girls Physical Education Department concentrated on developing creativity, sportsmanship, and physical fitness. A special dance group, extended from the required modern dance program combined with Esande in several after-school experimental workshops. Students and faculty members in other media of speech and music exchanged information with the dance classes.

The importance of sportsmanship was stressed in and out of class. ETHS cheerleaders, under the sponsorship of the department, discussed sportsmanship and the school image in a series of clinics with other suburban schools. Planning to assume more responsibilities in the expanding programs, the leaders honors group took an active part in extracurricular events.

An increasing emphasis on fitness testing accompanied the enlarging of each student's abilities in sports. Tennis, badminton, and volleyball skills were designed to increase agility and accuracy. Prowess in gymnastics, tumbling and swimming was gained with the painful discovery of unknown muscles.

Special interest sports as archery, bowling, and golf were continued. Broadening the field of physical education, first aid and health education explored functions, relationships, and treatment of the human body.

Practical Arts

Offering more specialized courses than ever before, the Home Economics Department taught the art of homemaking in depth.

Using films, texts, and periodicals, girls learned the theory behind dietetics, clothing, child care, personal development, and family and home living. Foods included units in nutrition and the consumer market, and clothing covered textiles, fashion, and costume history. Independent study programs were planned.

Then students left the classrooms to learn the practical skills of home economics. Child Development classes worked with tots in the nursery school. To achieve the best artistic effects, room decors were created and recreated in Home Planning and Furnishing. Sewing machines hummed and pots and pans clattered. Novice homemakers baked and "dressed" the gingerbread men on the Great-Grandmother Christmas tree.

The Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow was the proving grounds for senior girls. After a series of tests in knowledge and attitudes, the highest ranking candidate was honored as local Homemaker of Tomorrow with a silver charm award.

Power Mechanics New in Industrial Arts

With the development of the building program, more facilities were planned for the Industrial Arts Department. A revised curriculum placed major emphasis on experimentation and research. Plans for an industrial arts resource center, providing literature, films, and other student aids, were formulated.

A new area, power mechanics, provided activities not presented in other departmental courses. Students operated turbine, diesel, and jet engines and pneumatic and hydraulic power equipment. Plans for a foundry and metallurgical resource center for mechanical and chemical testing of metals were completed.

Ever increasing enrollment in the electronics area, the nation's most rapidly developing industry was accommodated for by moving into part of the second floor cafeteria. The drafting area was also expanded to provide for more advanced and specialized instruction, while the woods program was enriched by the addition of fabricating materials.

An increase in size and equipment marked the welding division this year. Graphic Arts facilities were expanded to cover two areas, basic studies and new industrial technology involving power equipment. Teachers and guest speakers lectured on the processes of industry, automation, and product design.

Business Courses Focus on Computers

Computers were focused on this year in the Business Education Department with a new laboratory facilitating the instruction of computer programming. In Computer Fundamentals and Data Processing, students learned to use such machines as the key punch, verifier, and sorter. A new course, Computer Program II-Independent Study, offered practical experience and background in computer technology.

In the Distributive Education sequence, Salesmanship presented students with the fundamentals of retail selling, while Accounting covered bookkeeping and accounting procedures. Contracts, insurance, and legal rights and precautions were included in Business Law's survey of legal contacts with consumer living.

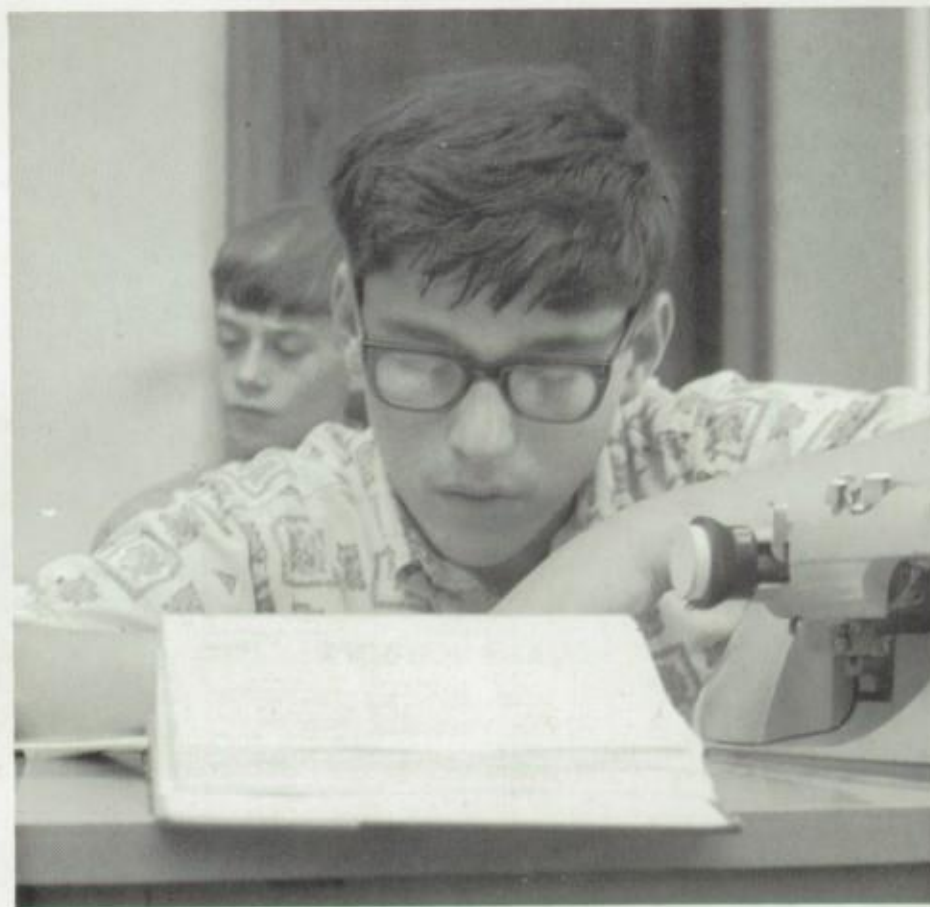

Beginning Typewriting, Personal Typing, College Notehand, and Record Keeping were offered in the general skills area. From general courses, students developed skills to manage their own affairs besides acquiring knowledge in specialized areas for employment in the business world.

DE, DO, POE Explore Careers

Earning merged with learning in Distributive Education, Diversified Occupations, and Participating Occupational Experience. Offered to qualified juniors and seniors, these work-experience courses coordinated on-the-job and classroom training.

DE was designed for students having a career objective in marketing or distribution. Classroom time was devoted to business topics such as sales techniques, display, pricing, marking, and management as well to the personal areas of human relations, work attitudes, and personality development. Students then applied their knowledge in local businesses 15 to 30 hours a week. They also became members of the local Distributive Education Club.

For students interested in industrial arts or trade careers, DO covered personal development, work relationships, and income budgeting in the classroom. Actual employment experience taught students the skills and principles of their specialized jobs. The Vocational Industrial Clubs of America provided an opportunity for group interest work on local, state, and national levels. Last spring students attended the Springfield convention, featuring various contests and business meetings.

Job application and self-analysis were integral parts of the POE program, geared to those terminating their education at the high school level. Students were locally employed in retailing and factory jobs.

Driver Education Teaches Strategy

New cars for the lab-phase of driving kept the Driver Education Department up-to-date. One vehicle was specially equipped with hand controls for handicapped students.

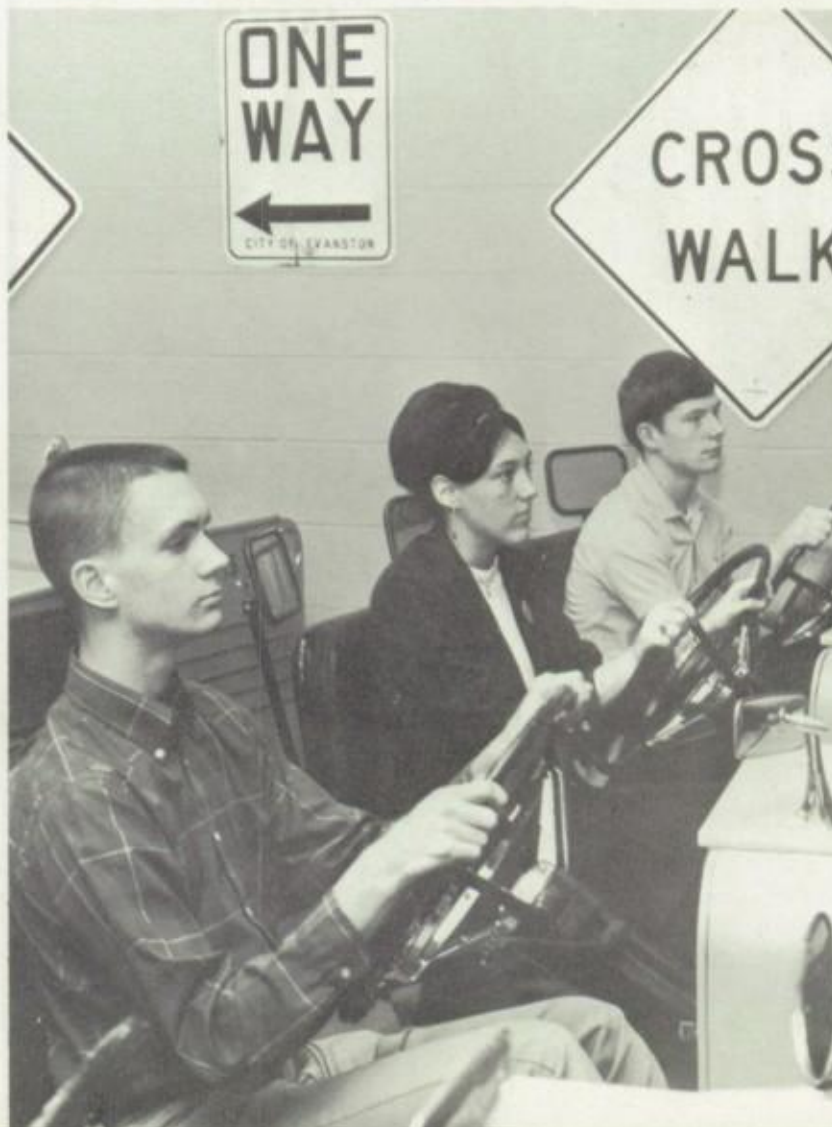

In the elective laboratory course students practiced driving techniques in drive-trainers, on the range, and in traffic. The driving simulators, accompanied by films duplicating various common road situations, helped students acquire good perceptual and reaction habits.

Manipulation of the auto was stressed on the range. Receiving radio-relayed instruction from the teacher, the student perfected his parking, passing, and turning skills. Defensive driving and safety habits were emphasized. Finally experience in traffic called on the student to use all his driving strategies.

Classroom Driver Education gave sophomores a background in becoming good traffic citizens. Topics covered included the factors influencing car insurance, the physical laws affecting driving, and the national and state traffic codes of law.

The driver psychology unit taught students how drinking, their emotions, and their health can take over the wheel with tragic consequences. Thus the Driver Education Department complemented its instruction in practical skills with a solid driving theory course.

Demonstration Center Guides Visitors

Among the 22 Illinois schools selected to run a Demonstration Center for the Gifted, ETHS welcomed educators from all over the state to observe Evanston methods. Visitors spent days roaming from classroom to classroom, interviewed teachers and administrators, and noted displays in the center itself.

Headed by Miss Karen Kuehner, the Demonstration Center focused on students especially talented in art, music, dance, and drama. It researched how to accurately identify the gifted and best develop their abilities.

Although the major purpose of the center was acquainting other schools with Evanston's progress, the Art Department initiated new programs and extended old ones to keep pace with the center's search for talent.

Visits to similar Demonstrations Centers at Oak Park and Ridgewood High Schools gave rise to a new senior English class. Mr. John Reque and Miss Kuehner guided 26 artistically gifted students in the independent study course. Field trips to concerts, operas, films, and plays enriched the curriculum.

Library Diversifies Materials, Services

A student browses in the fiction section of the library.

The permanent loan of specialized books and periodicals to the Music Department was included in the expansion program of the ETHS library. Preparing for the division of the school, the library began enlarging into four resource centers, each with IBM and study equipment.

Special services offered to faculty and students included specially prepared bibliographies, carrel space for college level students, and continual access for students engaged in independent study. Teachers were informed of current school and community events by bulletins distributed by the library staff.

Students found new angles to their studies in a series of book discussions and lectures, ranging in topic from geography to the French Revolution. For research in special projects or term papers, the professional library provided advanced material and an undisturbed refuge.

IBM, unique among high school libraries to ETHS, greatly simplified checking in and out books and issuing overdue notices. For a small charge, teachers and students could obtain replications of illustrations for reports or class work.

Two Halls Revise Counseling System

Anticipating the split of ETHS into four schools, the counseling system was revised and amended. North and South Halls converted to the vertical counseling system, while each hall prepared to assume a more independent role with the development of pupil personnel teams.

Employing the vertical system, every North and South Hall counselor took charge of one-quarter of each home-room class. Working with freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors, the counselors had a more equal share of work, and gained a broader perspective of the problems in each year of the high school student's career.

Pupil personnel teams, composed of the hall principal, assistant hall principal, four counselors, and a social worker, were assembled in each hall. Under the new system, the 16 counselors were no longer directly responsible to the main office but to their respective hall principals. The main office functioned as coordinating body of the four teams.

West Hall took a new direction with its freshmen by dividing them into small homeroom groups for more intimate discussion sessions.

The development of a language curriculum program for hearing impaired students occupied a prominent place in the Special Services' activities this year. With captioned films for the deaf, the program for handicapped students provided taped materials and mobility training for blind students.

A student's improvement through speech correction classes was measured with the expanded use of audio and video tapes. Following a curriculum combining the development of typing skills and improvement in language, educable mentally handicapped students prepared for future employment.

For students unable to attend classes, home and hospital instruction provided special teachers and school-to-home communication allowing actual classroom participation. The work-experience program, gaining support from over 50 institutions and businesses, employed students in various positions during the summer or school year.

While an additional social worker enlarged student case work services with consultations between faculty and parents, psychological service made evaluations of 115 students. A bandage and a kind word were available at health service, in daily access to the whole student body.

Organizations

Bob Shapiro brings up a new issue at a Central Council meeting.

Central Council Unites Dividing School

President David Levin guided Central Council through ETHS's difficult year of construction. Revising the constitution for tomorrow's school taught CC members the delicacy of the democratic checks-and-balances system. Of primary importance was relegating powers between CC and hall councils.

Serendipity, a new program consisting of jazz night and rock-and-roll night, satisfied the many musical tastes of ETHS students. In addition, CC took an active interest in community affairs, such as the December bond issue, civil rights, the new Evanston student union, and a student exchange program with Chicago schools.

The new student advisory board helped Evanstonians fit into the rich extracurricular life at ETHS. The interests of each student were matched with those served in the various specialized clubs. The student lounge committee opened and maintained the first floor cafeteria for eligible seniors.

CC Vice-President Chris Stollery guided these and the other CC Committees: Yamo, citizenship, elections, hi-lights, lost and found, orientations, publicity, safety, self-education, and tutoring.

Revenue received from budget ticket sales and Yamo '66 was allocated by CC among Girls' Club, Quadrangle, service committees, and small clubs. Surmounting the problem of transitional hall separation, the student government coordinated all club and hall council activities, ultimately uniting and representing the entire student body of 4,700.

East Sends Gifts to Vietnam

Budget tickets sales were led by East Hall for the third consecutive year with 88.4 per cent support. Vietnamese children received 100 pounds of chewing gum from the sophomore Christmas collection. David Lee presided over the expanding hall council.

Student actors penetrated and portrayed the crucial problems facing teenagers with convictions in "Rebel Without a Cause," the second annual EH play. Jalopies roared and tempers flared in the drama directed by Mrs. Doris Rudy, speech arts teacher.

Girls' Club, headed by Dale Buckley, took charge of Pin-It Sales. The blue and orange buttons, designed by Barb Linn, depicted Willie Wildkit's tail hanging out the back of an antique cab with the caption: "Put a Willie in your tank." Pin-It sales not only increased school spirit during Homecoming but also raised the funds for a GC scholarship.

"Santa's Workshop," a major EH-supported service project this year, turned out Christmas toys and treats for patients at Children's Memorial Hospital.

A campaign to increase the pace and participation in intramural activities was initiated by Quadrangle, under the leadership of John Powers. Boys also served as hall guards and helped create the Village atmosphere of the Homecoming dance, "Hot Time in Olde Towne."

North Designs Hall Button, Banner

This year with sprites, songs, and ceremonies, North Hall's three functioning bodies labored to give it a school-sized spirit. The sprites, dressed in yarn and filled with candy canes, went to Children's Memorial Hospital from "Santa's Workshop," sponsored by NH Girls' Club.

Headed by Jackie Goodman, NH Girls' Club managed one of the Daddy Daughter Dinner Dances. Designed to increase participation and interchange of ideas, its system of representation was revamped to include two executive board members and four sub-board members from each homeroom.

Quadrangle, led by Doug Keats, decorated the Homecoming Dance, "Hot Time in Olde Towne," in a crazy modern mood. Other projects included holding a movie night for the whole school and selling crew-shirts lettered "Evanston High."

North Hall Council's Thanksgiving canned foods drive topped the 1000-can goal and surpassed all previous collections. Directed by President Priscilla Lindsay, the Council laid the cornerstone for ETHS North in a building dedication ceremony.

Hall banners and buttons bearing a capital "N" and a contest for a song to be played at North Hall assemblies were initiated by NH Council. The hall play, "You Can't Take it With You," served further to prepare North Hall for its future role as semi-independent school.

Doug Keats, Barry Lifschultz, and Ron Buckly discuss plans for an upcoming Quadrangle dance.

South Drafts New Constitution

South Hall seniors enjoy a homeroom period of Bozo Ball.

South Hall's production of "Teahouse of the August Moon" gave the first air of dignity to the hall play. Even Sophia, a goat, played her part well, while adding humor to the production.

Drafting a new hall constitution with additional responsibilities was the most serious business of SH Council, headed by Bob Shapiro. A lion was selected as SH's emblem in a hall-wide contest. Decals were issued bearing the ferocious new mascot.

Over 500 paperbacks were shipped to American soldiers in Vietnam last December, thanks to SH Girls' Club under Irene Wong. A Christmas card was included in each book. The Christmas Toy Drive and "Santa's Workshop," both GC projects, benefitted mentally and physically ill children. Daisy Day flower sales gave December a touch of spring and an SH girl a scholarship.

Working with its other three hall counterparts, SH Quadrangle, headed by Joel Summer, helped sponsor the Homecoming dance, "Hot Time in Olde Towne," and the Christmas and Valentine's Day Post Offices.

Proud of leading in intramurals for so much of the year, SH boys passed out ribbons telling the hall's success. Quadrangle also shared responsibility with SH Council for getting a group for Jazz Night.

West Tries Homeroom Advisory Groups

In a successful homeroom experiment, West Hall freshmen were divided into ten small advisory groups. On alternate days half the groups met in homeroom while the other half met separately under teacher supervision. Due to growing hall office loads, the "Beast" joined the staff as chief student-pass stamper.

A hall art contest, sponsored by WH Council under Randy Barkan, awarded $25 to the year's finest artist. Mascot "Ma Schreiner" aided the candy sale's third successful year. WH's clothing drive brought Christmas to needy Evanston families. Sophomores collected 17 pounds of hard candy for soldiers in Vietnam.

Headed by Nancy Trenbeth, Girls' Club produced the exotic GC carnival, "Bizarre Bazaar," financing scholarships for two WH girls. Service projects included refreshment service in the doghouse, faculty aid work, and two fund-raising Donut Days.

"Omar the Dent-maker," WH Quadrangle's booth at "Bizarre Bazaar," was the carnival's biggest financial success. Under the leadership of Marc Barman, Quadrangle participated in the Christmas Post Office and helped create "Hot Time in Olde Towne."

Language Clubs

The annual sally to a German restaurant highlighted German Club's program under President Prudence Carlson, in addition to a "cake walk" at GC Carnival and German Christmas caroling. Francine Rasco told members about her summer stay in Austria.

Janice Westfall and Jim Atlas discussed the lighter aspects of their experiences in France at French Club, headed by Linda Burzotta. Janice's Paris fashions were modeled. A complementary Christmas party featured a French exchange student giving his impressions of America. An orientations display acquainted freshmen with the club.

Spanish Club opened its year with a college professor's talk on bullfighting and a film on the well-dressed matador. President Jan Veneziano publicized the club with a freshman orientation display and a library showcase display of Mexican dolls and materials. A professional tour guide and a recent student visitor to Mexico highlighted various meetings.

Euripides' "Cyclops" was presented by Professor Peter Arnot and his marionettes at Latin Club, under the leadership of René Page. A scavenger hunt and the spring banquet recalling the glory that was Rome varied the club's activities.

Because of their smaller membership, Russian Study Club and "Il Circolo Italiano" stressed the conversational aspects of their language. The Russian culture and Mediterranean life were brought closer to students by films, speakers, and discussion. Russian Club also contributed a "bongo-board" booth to GC Carnival.

Work To Maintain Excellence

Toni Gitles and Serena Pervos assign Evanstonian news stories to junior reporters.

Construction clamor aggravated the unavoidable confusion and rush of meeting The Evanstonian's weekly deadlines. Yet faithfully every Tuesday the newspaper was shipped to the printer. After a week's commotion, the office in 174 was eerily dead and deserted every Thursday afternoon, the finished product having been distributed and forgotten.

Editor-in-chief Joel Corwin guided the publication through its thirty-seventh year. Sponsor Mr. John Reque and the 1966-67 staff strove to give its Evanstonian the same All-American rating excellence achieved in the last four years.

English-journalism juniors combed the corridors for their assigned interviewees, while senior editors fingered frantically through back issues and other school newspapers for editorial ideas.

Suitably reflecting the dominant feature of ETHS this year, "Construction" was chosen for the theme of The 1967 Key. Linda Randell, editor-in-chief, had already made the decision in spring 1966 while editorship training sessions were still going on.

The three demanding deadlines were met despite adverse working conditions. Construction required the boarding up of the Key office windows. The racket of progress was shut out, but so were sunlight and fresh air.

This year's staff was challenged by the list of laurels of The 1966 Key: an All-American rating from the National Scholastic Press Assn., an A-plus rating from the National School Yearbook Assn., and a Medalist award from the Columbia Scholastic Press Assn.

Small Clubs Work To Help Students

Enriching ETHS socially, Combined Studies Council, headed by Judith Yaross, sponsored the spring picnic, family night, and a freshman party. To supplement the student-written Combined Studies Guide, a film of the department was student-prepared for next fall.

Conferring with teachers from the Illinois Teachers Association and visiting local classrooms familiarized Future Teacher Club members with the practical problems and methods of teaching. Career Conference acquainted students with various careers, including health-related and retailing jobs, through films and field trips. Personnel directors of four large stores emphasized different aspects of the retailing business in one movie.

Foreign students grew to better understand Americans and themselves in Cosmopolitan Club. The tradition of wearing native costumes at Christmas was upheld by President Eva Rusin. Inter-Group Relations Forum worked in its third year to melt religious and racial barriers among students. Headed by Colette Hill, IGRF was instrumental in promoting the new Negro Heritage course and sponsored programs with Crane Tech. High School students.

Clubs Act as Forums for Discussion

Colette Hill, chairman, and Carolyn Ligon, secretary, lead a discussion on inner-city service projects at a meeting of Inter-Group Relations Forum.

Science-oriented

What classes could not cover, small clubs did. Students oriented in electronics, math, and science congregated at meetings of Computer, Math-Science, Radio, and Astronomy Clubs.

Headed by Bob Goldberg, Computer Club assembled a mock computerized dating machine at GC Carnival. More serious projects included learning FORTRAN, the mysterious language of computers. Members independently programmed and operated machines at the IBM Data Center and the General Finance Corporation.

Math-Science Club devoted many meetings to individual student projects for the club's own science fair and various outside contests, including the Westinghouse Talent Search. President Pat Geisler arranged a special field trip to Argonne National Laboratory.

Community-minded Radio Club equipped its own radio station, W9ESA, with a disaster crew ready and qualified to broadcast emergency situation information. With the addition of new equipment, senior members worked especially hard to train newcomers for their amateur radio licenses. Field trips to Northwestern and Glenview Naval Bases highlighted the year.

With the sky as the limit, Astronomy Club viewed the unknown through its own 76 mm. optical refracting telescope. Visits to Dearborn Observatory, a lecture on UFO's, and participation in the Illinois Junior Academy of Science Expositions were this year's featured activities.

Band, Choir Explore Modern Music

Richard Redfield and Ed Aulie stand at attention as Mr. Robert Fought directs the ETHS Marching Band in the national anthem.

This year, the ETHS music groups provided students with a wide range of music literature and experiences in performance. In each facet of the music program, exposing students and audiences to the works and styles of writing of modern composers was emphasized.

The 74 members of the ETHS Marching Band, directed by Mr. Robert Fought, performed at the four home football games, Northwestern University's Homecoming, and the Memorial Day Parade. Undertaking Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," the band explored contemporary music in a more serious vein.

Contemporary music in the jazz idiom was studied by the ETHS Dance Band under the direction of Mr. Thomas Bates and Mr. Robert Fought. Participating in the State Demonstration for the Gifted, students learned by performing rather than learning to perform. Members rehearsed in strenuous after-school sessions for an annual concert.

The ETHS Choir, directed by Mr. Richard Rosewall, strove to stylistically interpret works ranging from the "Alleluia" chorus to the Kellogg "Snap, Crackle, Pop" theme. It performed at the annual Christmas and spring festivals, for the Rotary and Christmas Clubs, and at Fountain Square, besides the traditional Christmas caroling down ETHS corridors.

The Troubadors and the Madrigals, two musical honors groups, combined this year under the joint direction of Mrs. Betty Jacobson and Mr. Avon Gillespie for the two festivals. A similar arrangement was made between Girls Choir and the Mastersingers, directed by Miss Helen Keith and Mr. Richard Stromberg.

Club Members Play Matches, Instruments

Ira Weiner explains a difficult chess play at a Chess Club meeting.

Folk Music Club members Jim Moore and Bob Singer demonstrate their talents at a club meeting.

This year through ETHS's small clubs, students gained new interests and new dimensions. Besides becoming better acquainted with the school, club members formed new friendships and developed their own potentialities. Small Hobbies Club brought students together with hobbies ranging from keeping scrapbooks to collecting China figurines.

Enrollment in the Folk-Music Club, headed by Vicki Beatty, increased this year, with students attending discussions about current folk music and performing on various instruments. Students both from and outside ETHS were welcome to meetings, held monthly throughout the year.

The mysteries of singleton, blackwood, and slam were open to all students in sessions of Bridge Club, headed by Jay Gilbert and sponsored by Mr. Gary Saben. Beginning bridge fans, players wishing to improve their game, and champions ready for tournaments were all accommodated.

President Richard Horwitz designed tricky problems for competitive bouts of the Chess Club, sponsored by Mr. Robert Anspaugh. Meeting every Friday afternoon, the club featured ladder and speed tournaments, simultaneous exhibitions, and inter-school matches, including the Rockford Invitational on its agenda this year.

Keeping the public informed of school activities, Press Bureau, directed by Joette Ruiz and sponsored by Mrs. Barbara Pannwitt, submitted information to the "Evanston Review" and other local publications. The reporters, all 3 English HJ students, gained experience in journalistic writing and skill in reporting accurately.

Serious writers as well as interested students participated in Writers Club, directed by Kristin Lems and sponsored by Mrs. Marie Claire Davis. Its activities included engaging special guest speakers, publishing "Word Mosaics," and producing "Writer's Showcase," featuring student writing.

Members of the Photo Service found much to be covered this year, with the Senior Prom, Girls Club Carnival, and construction of the school. Chosen from Mr. John Regan's photography classes, students provided pictures of ETHS life for "The Evanstonian," outside publications, and showcase displays.

Edited this year by Chris Stollery, "The Pilot" prepared a guide to ETHS life. The publication included such features as a calendar of the year, school policies, a plan of the school, Senior awards, and the extra-curricular activities available.

Opportunities for girls to work at the Child Care Center, the Presbyterian Home, and three Evanston Hospitals were provided by the Volunteer Bureau. Headed by Nancy Newton and sponsored by Mrs. Dorothy Magett, the Bureau's program also included tutoring elementary children from the grade schools.

Students sacrificed study halls to work in the ETHS library as members of the Library Club, headed by Kendra Massey and sponsored by Mrs. Pearl Krause. Checking out books and magazines and working at the circulation desk were part of each member's work.

In this year's budget ticket campaign sales, 84 percent of the students bought tickets, with East Hall leading the hall sales. South-264 topped the homeroom sales with 92.5 percent purchasing, followed by East-224 with 89.5 percent, South-164 with 88.9 percent, and South-244 with 88.7 percent.

Football Victory

Homecoming festivities this year reflected the traditions of past celebrations as well as the mad mod mood of today.

Wildly cheering Evanstonians packed Memorial Field for Friday's pep rally to see varsity football co-captains Guy Ward and Art Malancuk present Homecoming Queen Torene Anderson with the traditional football autographed by the team. From the pageant of floats, North-104's was judged the winning entry. It followed a contemporary Village theme, tying in with the mood of the Homecoming dance.

The blue-and-orange drew a 24-7 victory over Waukegan's Bulldogs Saturday. The screaming Evanston crowd, overfilling the grandstands, saluted the Wildkit 11 with confetti and streamers.

Climaxing the weekend's festivities, 'Hot Time in Olde Towne,' WH Quadrangle's Homecoming dance, officially honored Queen Torene and her court. Two live bands played amid Village surroundings, including pop art, sidewalk fences, and amber and blue lighting. Woody Woodpecker and Abbott and Costello provided film entertainment between dances. The "anything goes" theme concluded the weekend.

Yamo '66 Satirizes Today's Society

Beatniks, Virgil Fainsod, the Rosewood Park Rock Garden Club, Hester Prynne, Mr. Bunn, and the Von Pap Family singers somehow got together to produce "Yamo '66," "Greenwich Pillage: Or How to Better Espresso Yourself," coordinated by John Collar.

Contemporary society as well as school found itself a victim of satire; topics from psychoanalysis to computers to pop poetry were all mercilessly exploited. Actors portrayed the Best Generation and Rebels Without Causes, which according to the student-written script includes teachers, a fashionable Fifth Avenue psychiatrist, and the matronly garden club president.

The "Whiffenpoof Song" skit examined the state of ETHS school spirit and sang of "Varsity lettermen who have gone astray." Young people found themselves outrageously mismatched in "A Look at Computerized Dating," attacking the gradual invasion of mechanical brains into all phases of modern life. In an experimental theatre spoof, North Shore culture-hunters gazed bewilderedly at Mrs. Cecelia Figgmoughton's creation of profound incomprehensibility.

While gymnasts, a modern dance performance, and a TW3 take-off served to vary "Yamo '66," student arranged music tended to unite it. Individual groups, including 54 Heads, the Sidewinders, and Tempos, were also given a chance to perform.

Girls Club Carnival Features Arabian

Headline creators await their newspaper at Combined Studies Council's booth.

Arabs invaded the fieldhouse for this year's Girls Club Carnival, "Bizarre Bazaar." Visitors bought tickets from nomads in pitched tents, and took rickshaw rides provided by East Hall junior homeroom to refreshments at the oasis. Traveling guides from North Hall Quadrangle led the way to the colorful booths of the bazaar.

A frequently visited site was West Hall Quadrangle's first place car-washing booth, where students decorated a car with their aggressions. Daring visitors obtained a tattoo from Central Council Publicity's booth and a handwriting analysis from North Hall Girls Club's Arabian ladies.

An elaborate communications system, consisting of Combined Studies Council newspapers and telegraphs from the Hobbies Club, told the evening's events. Central Council Safety Committee concentrated on the transportation problem with a Reaction Time Test to curb the collision rate.

East Hall Girls Club displayed baby pictures of unsuspecting celebrities. Victims walked the plank at South Hall Girls' Club booth. Computer Club and West Hall Girls' Club also contributed to the spirit of the carnival.

Although some older clubs did not sponsor a booth this year, several new groups like Girls Leaders entered for the first time. The profits from "Bizarre Bazaar," the last all-school carnival, went to the 1967 Girls Club Scholarships.

Christmas Activities Center on Traditions

Mrs. Dorothy Bohnen adds finishing touches to the Christmas tree that she designed for the main lobby.

Christmas at ETHS this year will be remembered as traditions: the fireplaces blazing in the front lobby; the ETHS Choir caroling through the halls; the Christmas Music Festival closing on the majestic "Alleluia Chorus"; and the tree towering before the main office.

Faculty members and students trimmed the authentic "Great-Grandmother Christmas Tree," which recalled the English Victorian era. Under the direction of art consultant Mrs. Dorothy Bohnen, home economics classes made popcorn balls and gingerbread men, arts-craft students created Oriental lanterns and paper chains, and special education classes strung popcorn and cranberry chains.

Fragile ribbon candy and cornucopias overflowing with toys and treats also adorned the tree. The Senior Class's Christmas card to ETHS, signed over 1,000 times, was displayed nearby. Held around the tree were the faculty tea for present and retired teachers and the alumni tea for college-attending Evanston graduates.

"Santa's Workshop" invited girls to create colorful yarn elves wearing cotton beards and cone hats and bearing candy canes for Children's Memorial Hospital. Cosmopolitan, Folk Music, Computer, Math-Science, and Chess Clubs celebrated the holidays as did French, German, Russian, Latin, and Spanish Clubs.

Experiments Depict Debut Theater

The little theatre was the home base of several series of Studio Theatre productions, ranging in scope from William Shakespeare to Edward Albee. Student talent in the experimental theatre was showcased in productions of Readers Theatre, directed by Mrs. Janet Bauer of the Speech Arts Department.

Debut Theatre, originated this year, provided experience in performance for many prospective actors. Supervised by Mr. Carl Barth of the English Department and Miss Wanda Mitchell, chairman of the Speech Arts Department, Debut Theatre presented six one-act plays never before produced at ETHS.

The illogic of a horrible tradition was portrayed in Debut Theatre's first production, "The Lottery," "The Sandbox," Edward Albee's bizarre comedy; Ionesco's "The Lesson;" and a chamber opera produced in conjunction with the Music Department were included in the series.

Also produced in the little theatre, scenes directed by Advanced Dramatic Arts students were chosen from plays including Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" and Archibald MacLeish's "JB." Music and farce found expression in two student written plays: "Letters," by Jeff Sweet, and "The Hermit" by Jeff in conjunction with Marc Lipman.

Renee Page as Lotus Blossom has trouble being a good geisha girl to Laury Robbins.

Perry Smulson as Sakini helps Bruce Radebaugh search for his adventure magazines.

Hall Plays Star Okinawans, Rebels

South Hall started the second year of hall plays with its presentation of "The Teahouse of the August Moon," directed by Mr. William Ditton. The three-act comedy dealt with the American occupation of Okinawa and Col. Wainwright Purdy's efforts to advance the Okinawan people in Tabiki. One of the highlights of the play was the appearance of a live goat.

Included in leading roles were Bob Levin as Sgt. Gregovich; Bruce Radebaugh as Col. Purdy; Laury Robbins as Capt. Fisby; Joel Summer as McLean; Perry Smulson as Sakini. Renee Page as Lotus Blossom and Sue Moore and Linda Kaplan, double-cast as Miss Higa-Jiga, played the main female roles.

"Rebel Without a Cause" was presented as the second play under the direction of Mrs. Doris Rudy. The East Hall play was concerned with the rebellion of teen-agers resulting from lack of communication with their parents. The play emphasized characterization, depending on dialogue rather than scenery or props. The climax of the play, a chicken run, was related to the audience through the dialogue of the characters.

Matt Mallory and Brooke Garber starred as Buzz Gunderson and his girl friend, Judy. Other leads were Phillip Lipschultz as Plato and Jim Morris as Jim Stark.

Ellen Hoffman and Jim Halla as Mr. and Mrs. Stark defend their son at the police station.

The gang, led by Matt Mallory as Buzz, harass a stranger in the East Hall production of "Rebel Without a Cause".

Brooke Garber as Judy reveals her problems as a misunderstood teenager.

North, West Give

Period comedies were the vogue for North and West Schools' productions this year. Under the direction of Mr. Wallace Smith, North School presented the 1937 Broadway comedy "You Can't Take It With You" on Feb. 3-4.

The plot centered around the crazy, fun-loving Sycamore family and what happened when the younger daughter brought her fiance home to dinner. Globe lamps and landscape pictures, live kittens and snakes, fireworks and sparklers created a unique atmosphere.

Penelope Sycamore, the maternal playwright, was played by Priscilla Lindsay, while Mark Dunskey portrayed the wonderful Grandfather Sycamore. Other cast members included Ken Levis, Chris Stoyke, Sarah Rohner, Allen Cooper, and Mary Trimble, with Elaine Cohen as student director.

Under the direction of Mr. Bruce Siewerth, West School produced "Charley's Aunt," a rollicking English farce. The play, set in 1890, concerned two young college men who, having persuaded a fellow student to assume the role of their aunt, must cope with the real aunt's subsequent arrival.

The natural appeal of the play was enhanced by the formal wear consisting of long, bustled gowns, and English university uniforms. Five weeks of painstaking rehearsals climaxed with performances on April 28-29.

Sarah Rohner as Alice looks on while Bret Leonard as Kolonkov offers a cup of tea to Chris Morris as Mr. Kirby in "You Can't Take It With You."

After a tussle between Kolonkov and Mr. Kirby, Allen Cooper as Tony Kirby dusts off his father's trousers.

Jeff Sweet as Paul Sycamore consoles his wife, played by Priscilla Lindsay.

Priscilla Lindsay tries to paint a portrait of Ken Levis as Mr. DePinna.

Rain Falls in '110 in the Shade'

The life of a small ranching community was mirrored in this year's spring musical production, "110 in the Shade." Adapted by N. Richard Nash from his hit play "The Rainmaker," the show was produced by Mr. Richard Rosewall and directed by Mr. William Ditton.

Conducted by Mr. Alvin Mistak, the ETHS orchestra accompanied the cast. The score, written by Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones, included 16 widely varying songs, ranging from the exhilarating "Rain Song" to Lizzie's "Is it Really Me?"

Miss Jacqueline Bray's choreography was complemented by sets designed by Mr. Richard Proper. The 110-degree heat was emphasized with special lighting effects by Mr. Bruce Siewerth, then relieved by a real rain storm that swept the stage at the finale.

The plot concerned efforts of H.C. Curry to marry his lonely daughter Lizzie, portrayed by Katie Hanley and Faye Wexberg, to Sheriff File, played by Ted Schaffner and Milton Frank. The community, at the time, is beset with drought.

Claiming to end the drought, the handsome swindler Starbuck arrives on the scene. Played by Laury Robbins and Bill Williams, Starbuck teaches Lizzie to be a woman, bringing marriage to Lizzie and File plus the life-saving rain.

The "110" cast included Howard Manning and Bill Kionka as H.C. Curry, Maury Froy and Ken Kline as Noah Curry, Howard Wishne and Paul Ilmer as Jimmy Curry, and Becky Vogt and Kathel Carlson as Jimmy's wide-eyed girlfriend Snooky.

Becky Vogt as Snookie Updegraff asks Jimmy to take her to the picnic.

Howard Wishne as Jimmy, Howard Manning as H.C., and Maury Froy as Noah try to persuade Ted Schaffner as File to come to their picnic.

Jon Wirsz as Mr. Curtis prays for rain before the picnic begins.

Paul Ilmer as Jimmy Curry, William Kionka as H.C. Curry, and Ken Kline as Noah Curry eagerly await the arrival of Lizzie in "110 in the Shade."

Bill Williams as Starbuck describes the various types of rain he can produce to the credulous townspeople.

Musical Mirrors Ranching Community

Milton Frank as File rewards Jimmy for an insulting remark after refusing to go to the picnic.

Howard Manning as H.C. Curry tries to console Katie Hanley as his daughter Lizzie after she has been told she is "plain."

After promising to wait for Jimmy, Kathel Carlson as Snookie flirts with Murray Miller as Freddie.

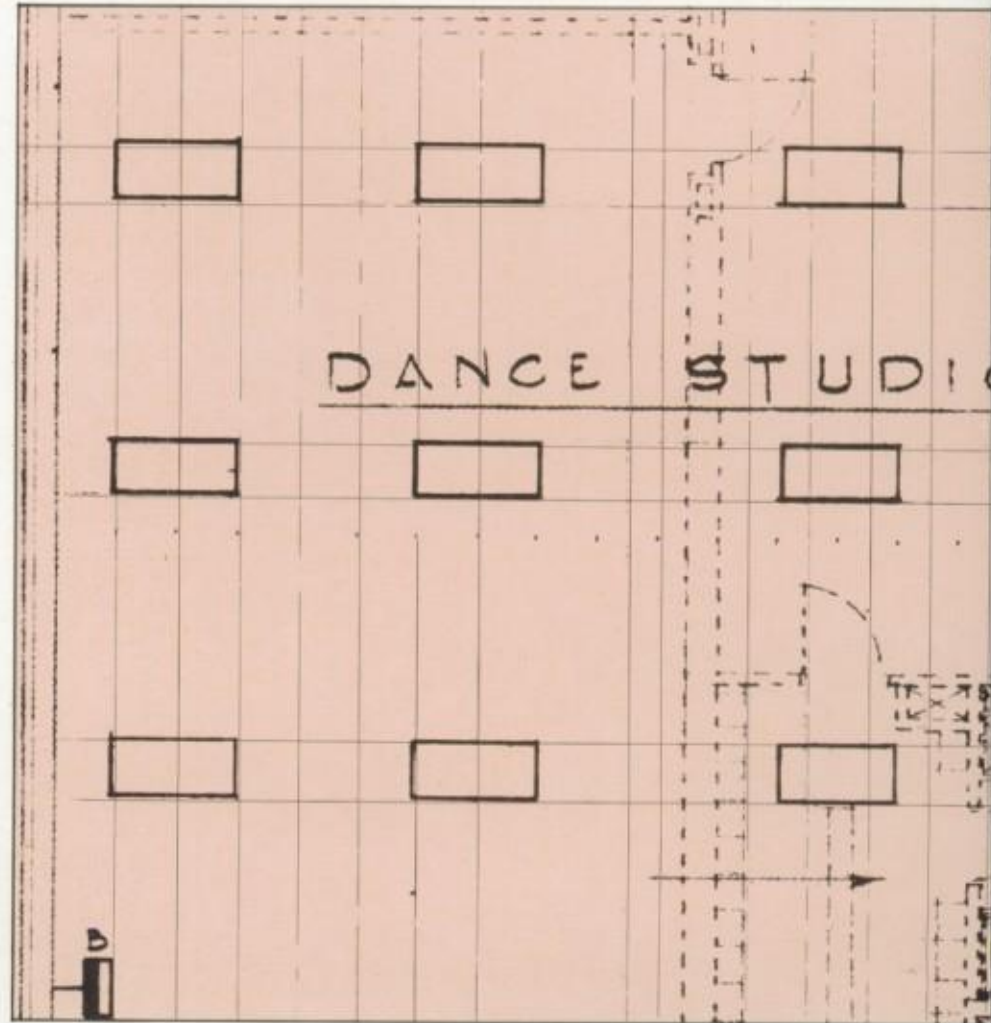

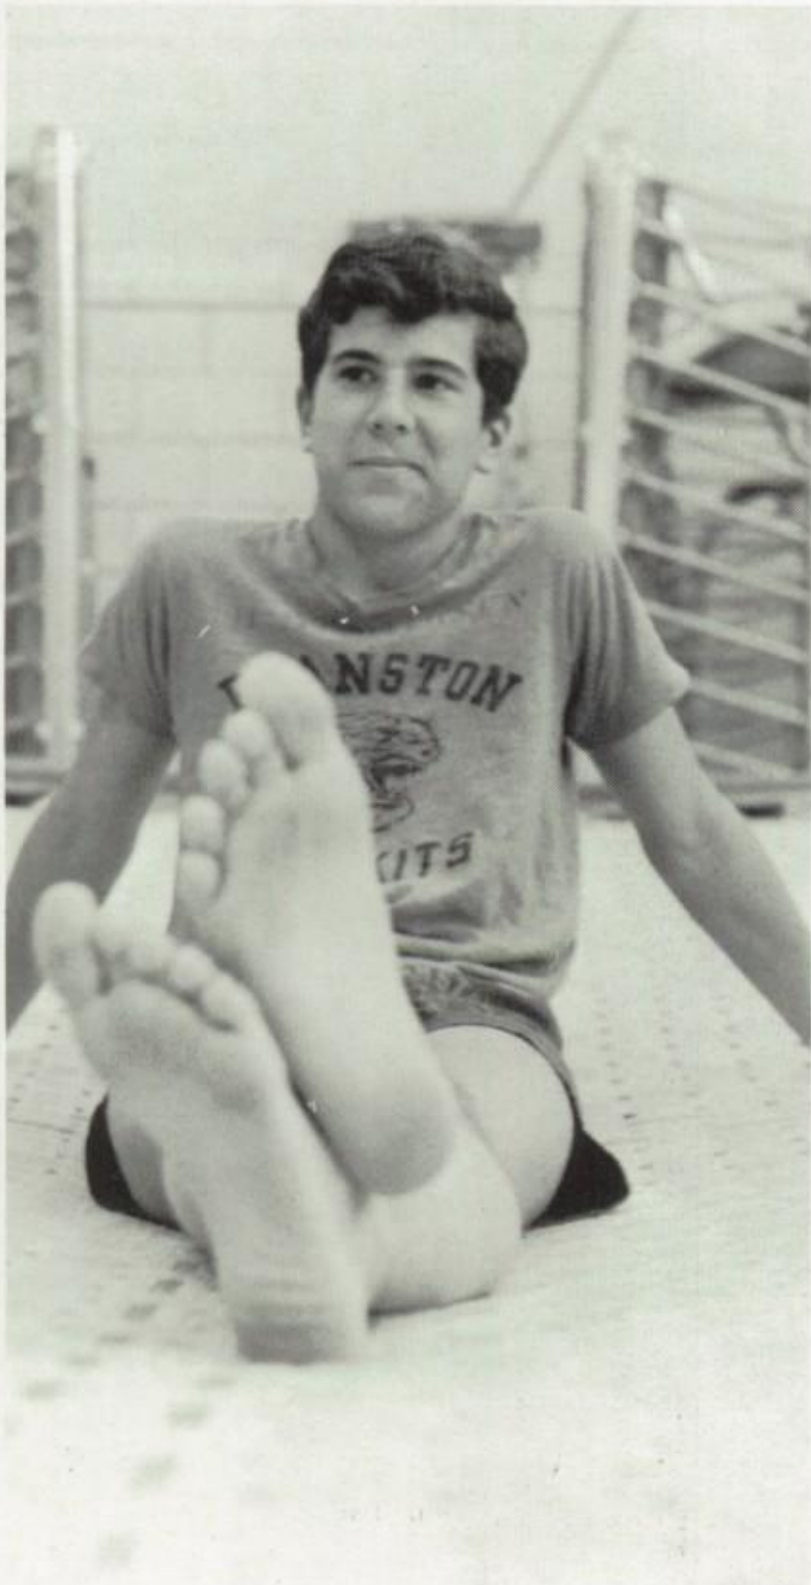

The Three Point townspeople listen with wonder as Starbuck, played by Laury Robbins, describes his rainmaking abilities in "110 in the Shade."

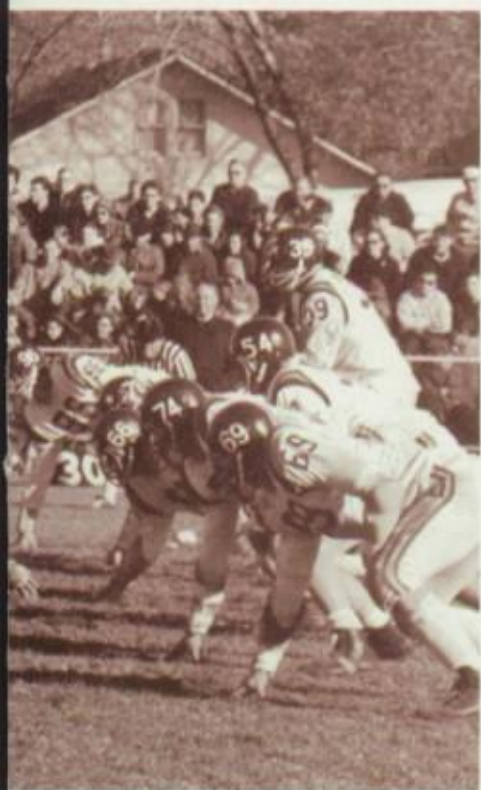

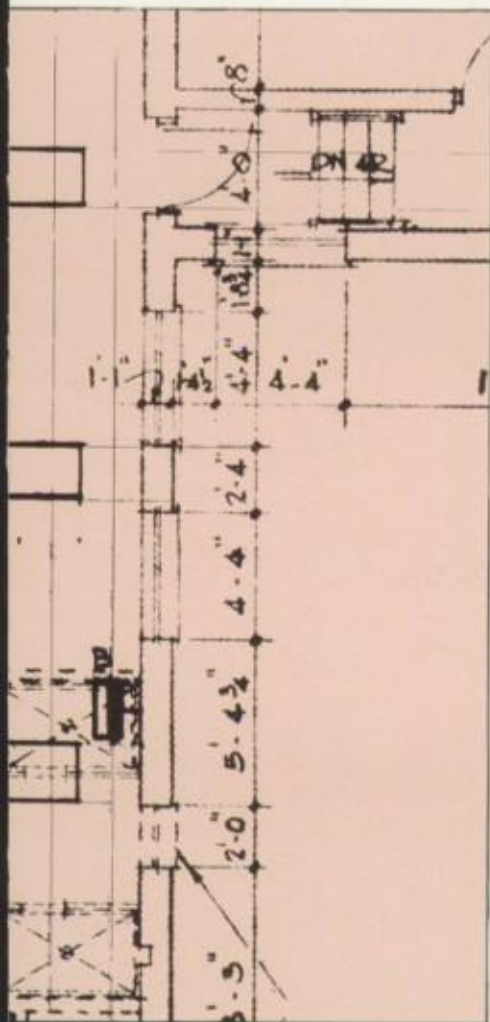

Faye Wexberg as Lizzie sings of her need for love after arriving in Three Point.

Football Team Ends Season Undefeated

Whether it was Jim Vaughn kicking off, Jay Monaghan sneaking through the line, or Larry Nord or Chris Rickards running half the field to a touchdown, ETHS, with nine wins and no losses, went undefeated for the first time since 1963.

Having led Evanston to first place for the eighth time in ten years, Coach Murney Lazier stated that the team had looked forward to every game as a tough game, with New Trier East, Waukegan, and Oak Park as the hardest to beat. The only big threat of the three, however, was the game with New Trier East, who had dealt the Kits their only loss last year. But ETHS kept the Indians from stopping its winning streak with a close score of 19-13.

The varsity football team this year worked hard for its success, showing coordination in its various plays. Oak Park, rated by some as the toughest opponent of the season, went under the crushing Wildkits by 33-0.

Winning its first game of the season with Rockford West, Evanston went on playing game by game until it appeared certain the Kits would become Suburban League champions after their shutout of Highland Park. Coach Lazier's reaction to the undefeated season: 'We're proud of our boys.'

Behind the guidance of Head Coach Ken McGonagle the varsity soccer team compiled an overall 9-2-1 record. The team, which had unusual depth, lacking outstanding individuals, according to the coach. Its Suburban League record of 5-2-1 put the squad in second place with losses to New Trier East and Morton East. The overall record ranked the Kits in unofficial second in the state behind New Trier East.

All-State selections were Rick Klamm, captain and halfback; Geoff Marchant, goalie; Bob Merubia, inside right; and Walt Perrin, center forward.

The Kits scored a total of 28 goals while holding their opponents to 5. The team depth was shown by the fact that 12 squad members scored during the season. Ned Vuksan and Walt Perrin led scoring with five and four goals respectively.

Second in Suburban League, Second in State

Ron Bannerman, Bill Stinchcomb, and Walter Jackson successfully defend the ETHS goal.

Evanston's top three runners, Dave Abernathy, Fred Wharton and Harold Posner, work out in preparation for a cross country meet.

Cross Country Runners Take State

In his first year as cross country coach, James Nelson led the team to its first state championship. Coach Nelson attributed the success to the total balance of the team.

The balance was shown in the fact that the top five runners placed so close together. The state championship team was paced by Harold Posner, eleventh; Fred Wharton, twelfth; Chuck Dehlinger, fourteenth; Dave Abernathy, twenty-first; and Steve Smith, fifty-ninth. John Prisland and Randy Barkan also placed in the meet.

The cross country team finished first in the Suburban League and won the district meet. Throughout the season it was undefeated in SL competition, starting off the year by placing first in the Proviso Invitational with five runners in the top 15.

Prospects for next season center on juniors Abernathy, Smith, Dave Falk, and Gerald Gibbs and sophomore Mike Tucker.

Third in Suburban League

Basketball Team Takes Third in SL

Evanston's varsity basketball team started off the '66-'67 season with a roar and finished with a respectable 17-8 record.

After winning their first seven games, the Kits fell to Peoria Manual and Rockford Guilford in the Rockford Classic at Harlem High School over Christmas vacation. They ended with third place in the Suburban League with an SL record of 8-6 behind first-place Waukegan and second-place Proviso East.

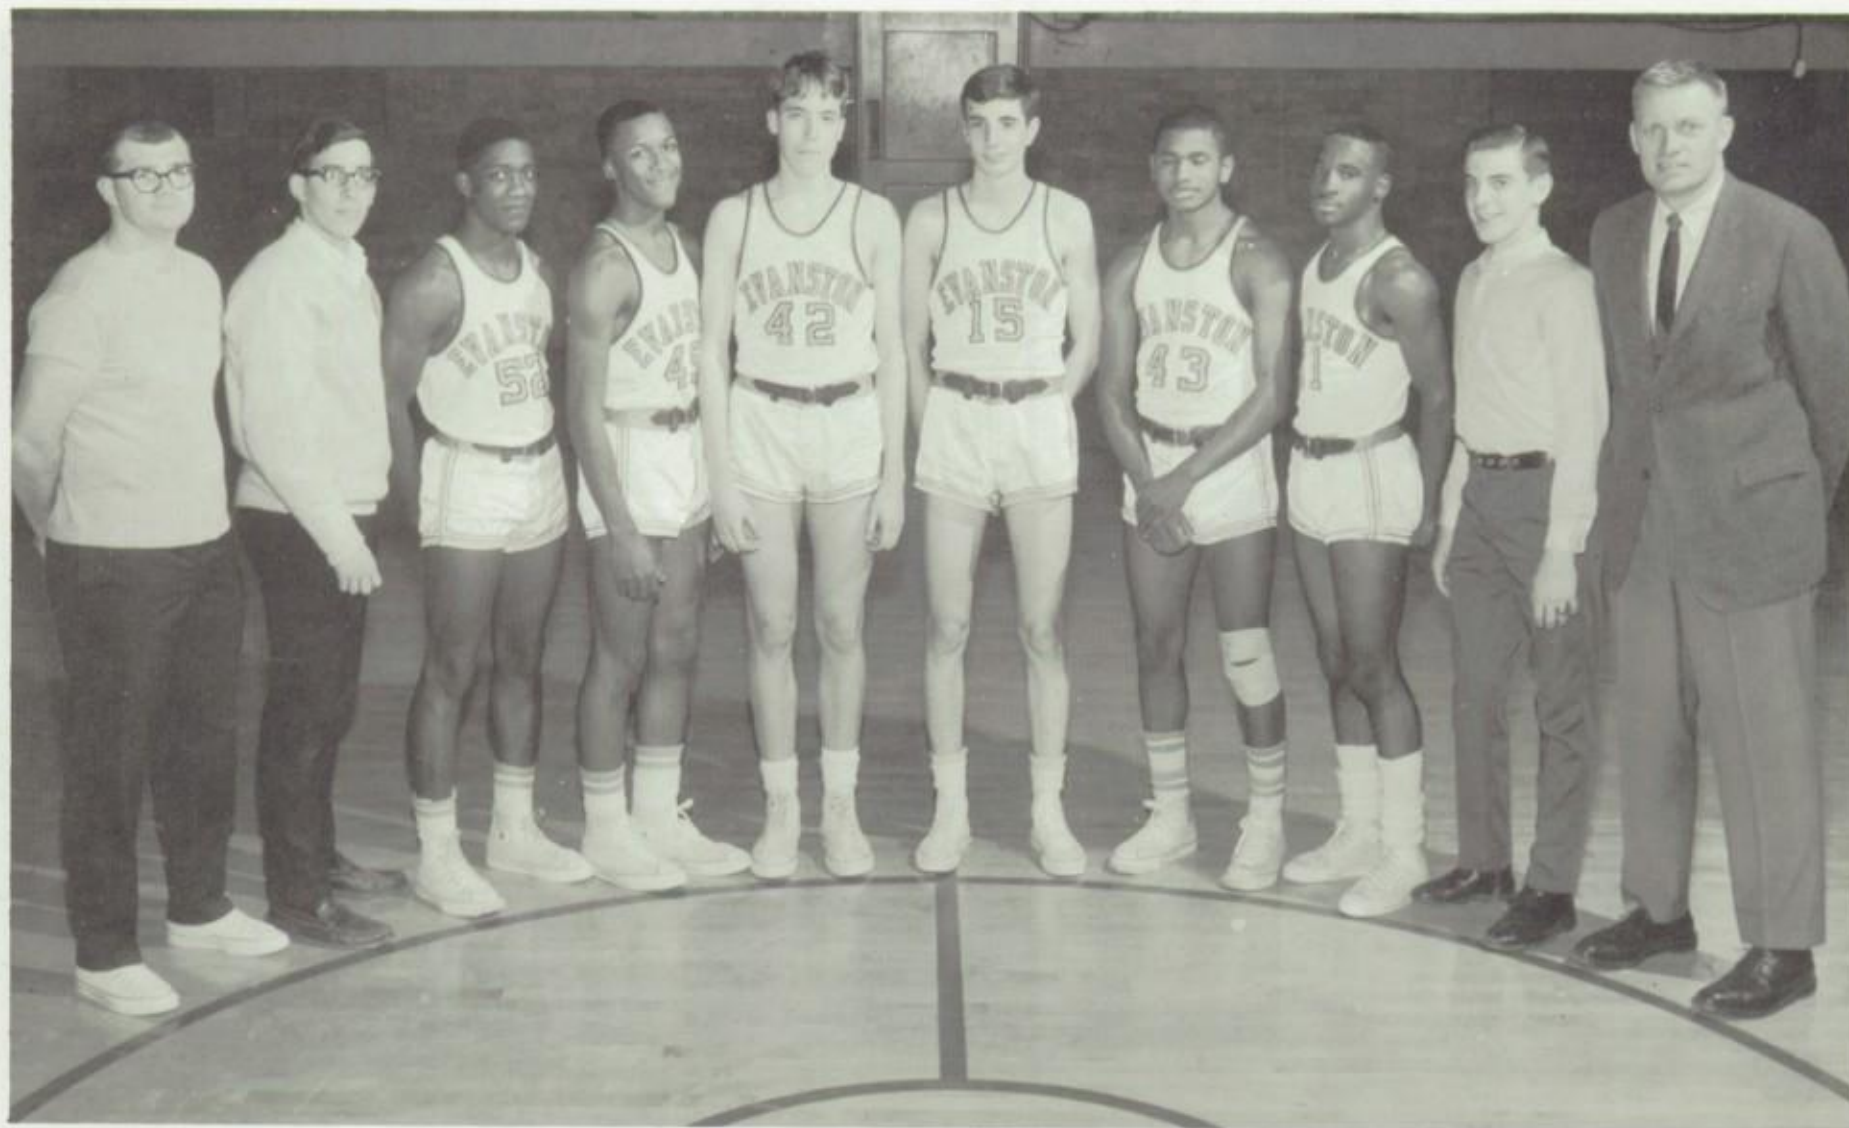

The team had nearly risen to its peak when it fell to SL champ Waukegan by only five points, but the suspension of four team members proved to be a minor setback. The Kits recovered, however, but not soon enough to climb back on top.

The Wildkits won their first two games in regional play against New Trier West and Niles North, but their spree was stopped by Chicago's St. Patrick. Greatly responsible for the Kits' late season success were Farrell Jones, Jay Monaghan, and Larry Nord. Jones, on the Kit squad since his sophomore year, consistently led the team to victories via scoring and offense.

Other players who figured in the Kits' success were Ron Cooper, Chris Robinson, and Walt Perrin.

Skillful maneuvering on the part of Jay Monaghan results in a steal and two points for Evanston against Proviso East.

Bob Lackey tips in the ball for another two points against Morton East.

Evanston starts out the second half of the Proviso East game by taking the ball in the jump.

Swimmers Capture SL Supremacy

After tying with New Trier East for the Suburban League championship, the Evanston swimming team went on to take second place in the state meet held at ETHS. Led by Barry Lifschultz, Rob Wrobel, Dana Thorne, and Tom Haswell, Evanston ran up 118½ points, coming in second to Hinsdale Central's 167 and nosing out New Trier East's 98½. New Trier East was 1966 champ, and the Evanston tankmen did not forget it.

1967 was the first in many years that Evanston did not produce an individual winner in the state meet, according to Coach Dobbie Burton. A major upset in the state meet came when Derrin Fund of Evanston came in second in diving. Fund had received a leg injury earlier in the season.

Undefeated Gymnasts State Champs

Bill Wright, Suburban League champion on the rings, executes one of the most difficult rings tricks, the iron cross.

The undefeated Evanston gymnasts took first in the state gymnastics championships for the third time in its nine-year history.

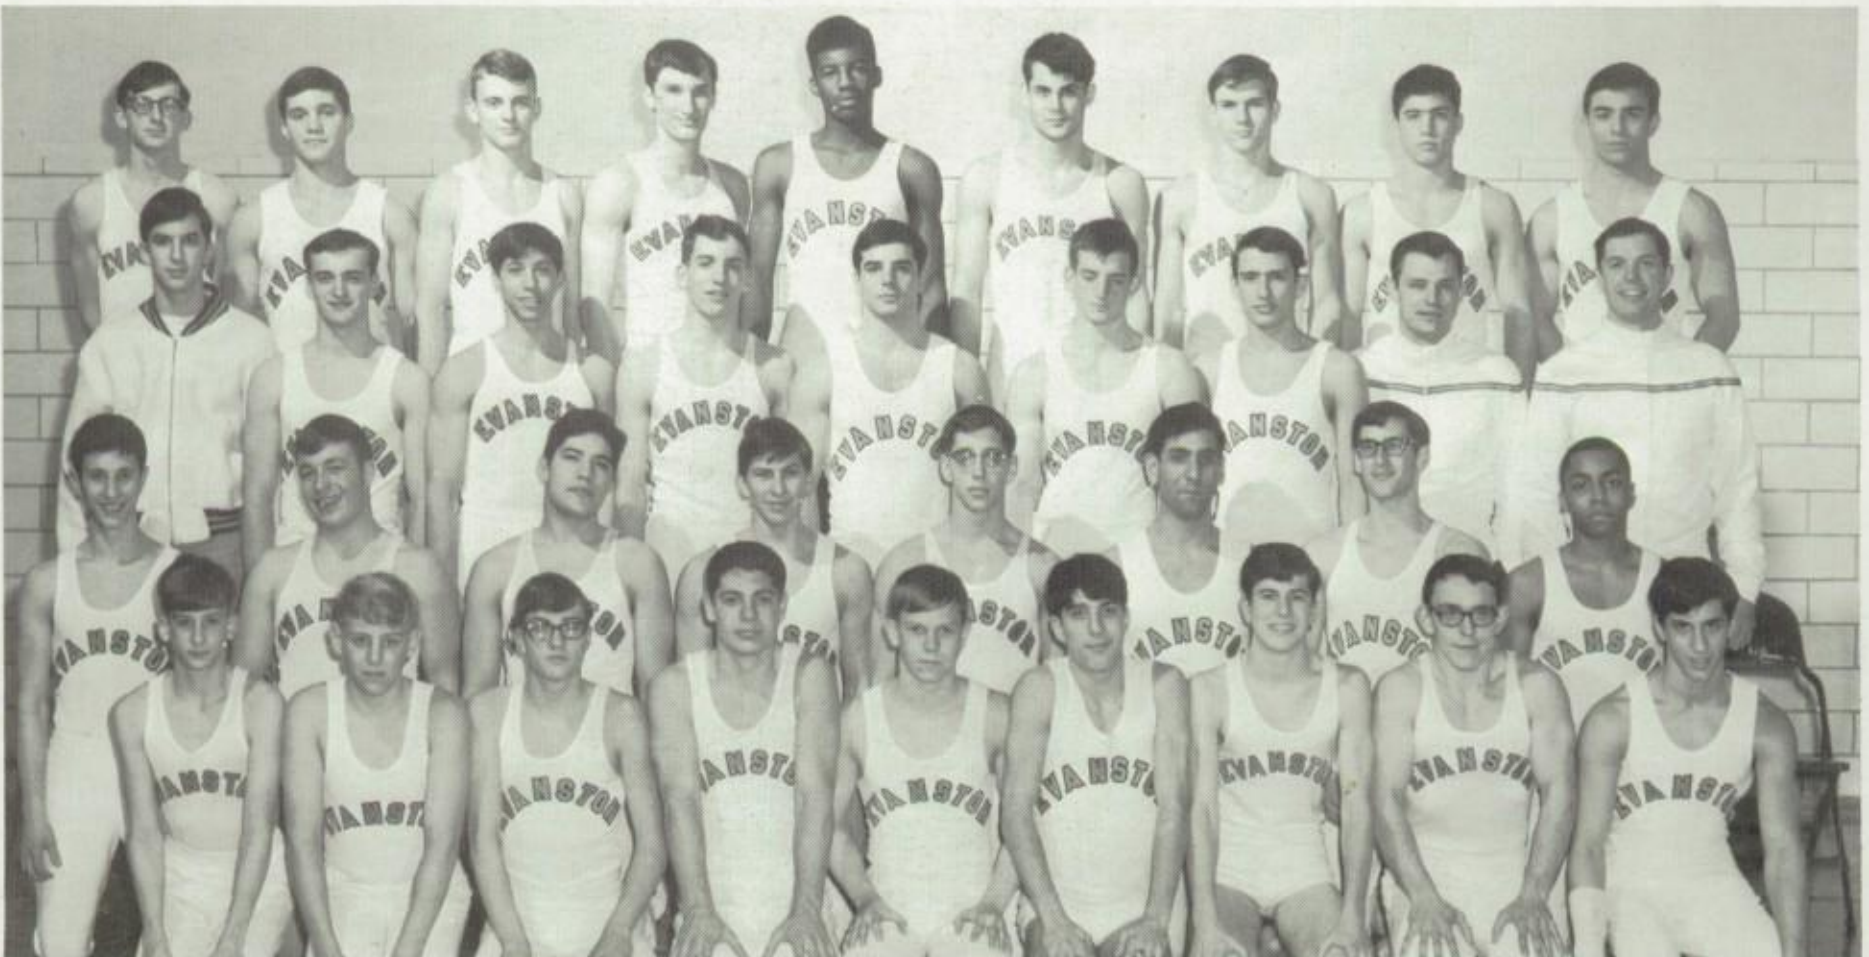

The Kits finished with a score of 51½, followed by Prospect with 36½ and Maine East with 32. Senior Lee Wayman led the team by taking first on the parallel bars. Other high contributors to the team's score were Dave Silverman, second of the trampoline and fourth in tumbling; Mark Yedor, third on the tramp; Russ Giles, third on the horizontal bar; and Doug Keats, fifth on the side horse.

Earlier, the Kits overwhelmingly took the Suburban League after an 18-0 season by taking five championships, led by the state finalist as well as Bob Borok, Bill Wright, and Pete Kenyon.

Wrestlers Tie for Second in State

Errol Wilson, state champion in the 133-pound class, accepts the first place district award.

Capturing second place at the district and tying for second at the Illinois School Assn. wrestling championships, the Evanston wrestlers finished their highest in 45 years, according to Coach Elias George.

The championship team was composed of Errol Wilson, who won first place in the 133-pound class, and Guy Ward, who finished third in the 138-pound division.

Evanston's point total at the state meet came to 22, tying with Carl Sandburg High School for second place. Both Ward and Wilson are seniors and will not be returning to the squad. Hopefuls for next year's season include juniors Ricky Williams in the 120-pound class; Steven Burns, wrestling at 127; and George Drayton, heavyweight.

Athletic Groups Teach Fundamentals

Lettermen's Club is a service organization comprised of varsity lettermen whose goal is to do at least one service project for the school or community each year. Mr. William Bunn is faculty sponsor.

Sponsored by Mr. Ronald Walden, Trampoline Staff members teach grade school students trampoline skills on Saturday mornings. Similarly, Aquatic Staff, sponsored by Mr. John Terhune teaches grade schoolers the basic swimming strokes and elementary diving techniques.

Aquettes, directed by Mrs. Ann Stevens, provides girls an opportunity to plan, produce, and present their own synchronized swimming show each year.

Girls' Teams Play Other Schools

Sponsored by Mrs. Barbara Rubin, the girls' tennis team completed another successful season in its five-year membership in the North Suburban Tennis League. The team played tennis matches with Deerfield, Glenbrook South, Maine East, Maine South, Maine West, Niles East, and Niles West.

The girls' badminton team operated on a similar schedule; girls who participated in intramural badminton tried out. Mrs. Carole Pongonis was team sponsor.

Girls' Sports Board, sponsored by Mrs. Rubin, directed the girls' intramurals program, while Senior Leaders, sponsored by Miss Henrietta Berning, managed several underclass gym classes.

Intramurals Meet Student Interests

The intramural program is a competitive activity for all boys not participating in interscholastic sports. The program is designed to meet as nearly as possible the interests and needs of all students.

Nineteen different activities, planned and directed by Mr. William Bunn, were offered throughout the year, ranging from golf and water polo to riflery and badminton. The activities were organized on a hall homeroom competitive basis.

The scoring system for intramurals awards points to participating boys, who represent their homerooms in competition. Extra points are given to individuals who score highly in competition; homeroom and hall winners in sports series also win bonus points.

Field Day is the traditional climax of the intramural program. Seventeen events, including pushball, hop-step-jump, base running, and fungo hitting, are offered. Entrance points as well as achievement points are awarded, with participation helping to determine homeroom and hall victors.

Girls' intramurals featured more activities this year than ever before. Track and field events were offered this year for the first time to prepare girls for the olympics, traditional climax of their program, which has as its purpose having fun and the encouragement of individual sports participation.

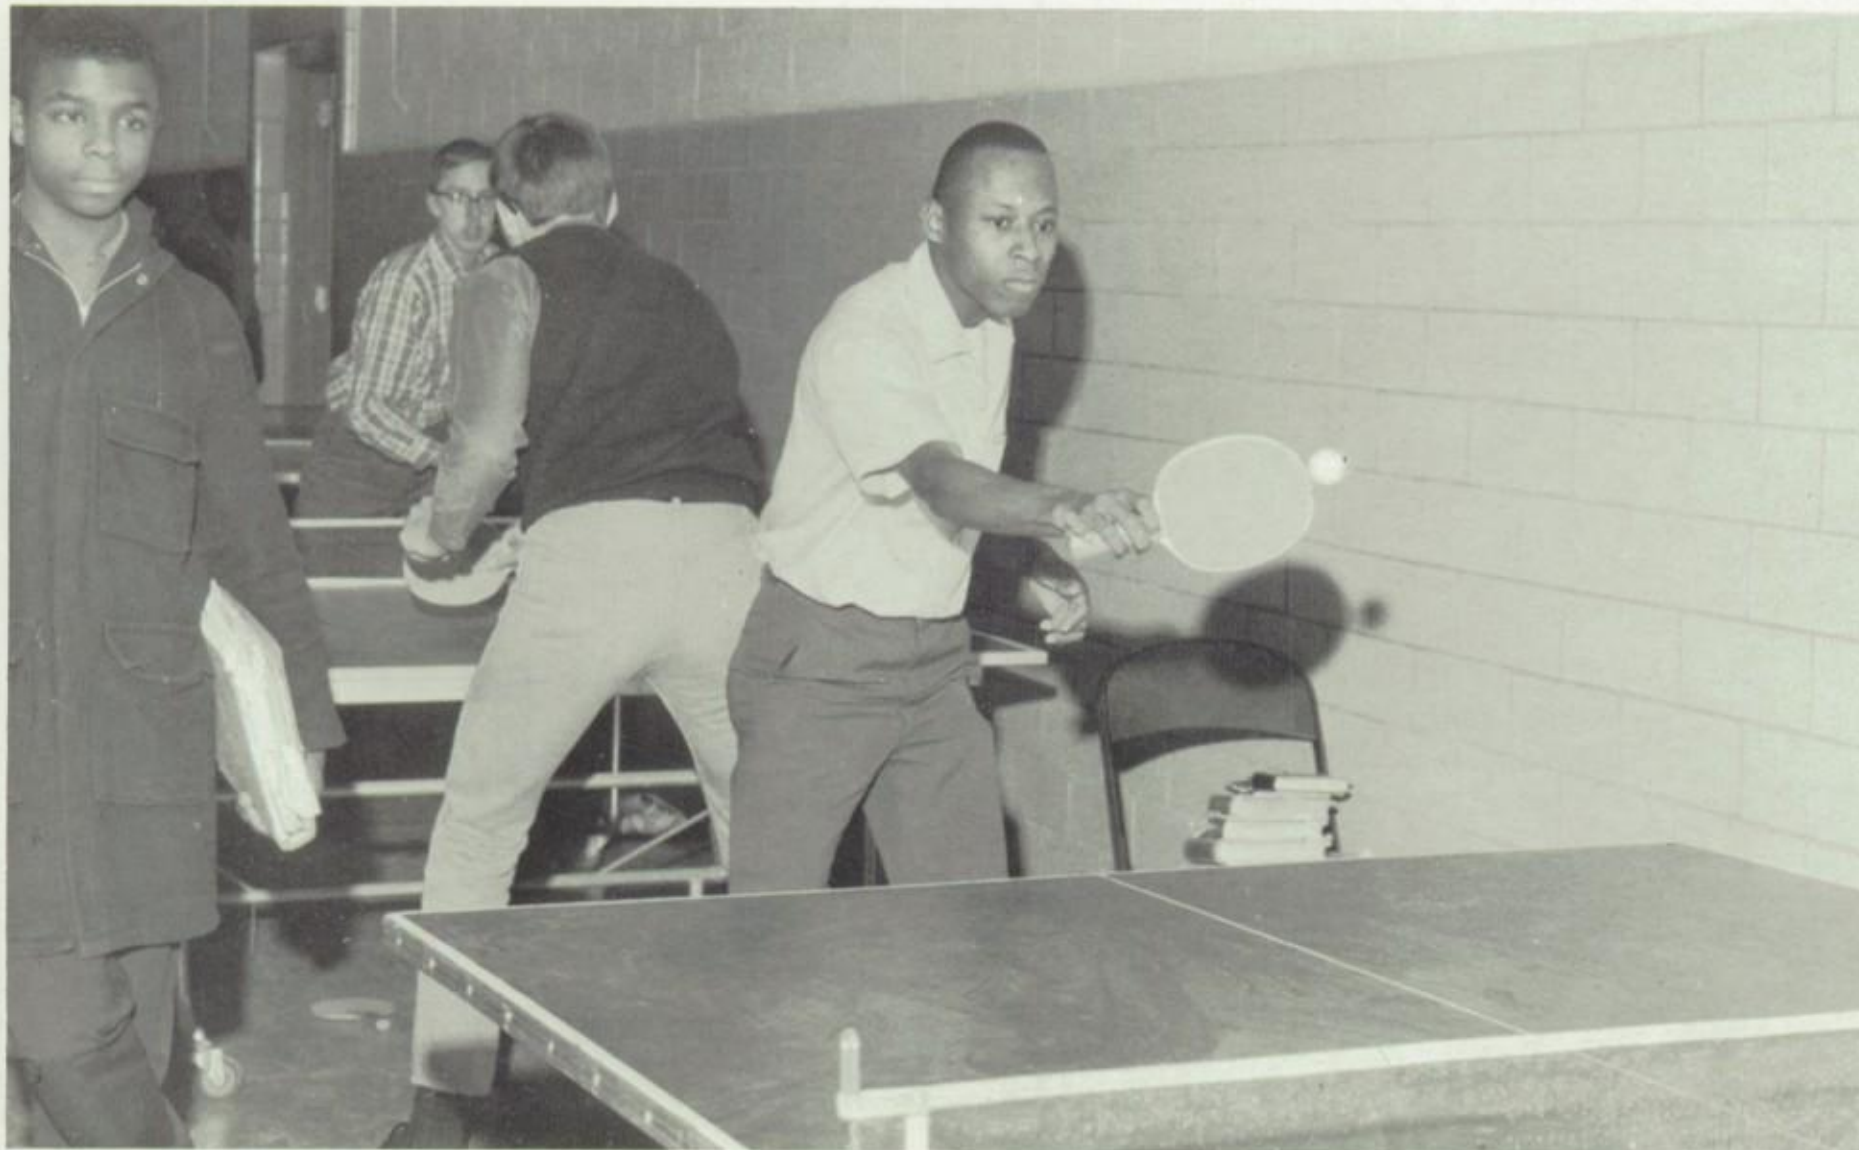

Intramurals sponsor Mr. Bill Johnson gives instructions before beginning a ping-pong match.

Cheerleaders, Willie Spark Spirit

Marcia Wilson, Mimi Chesterton, Cindy Barnett, Patricia Saporito, Nancy Mills, Marsha Avery.

Dodging paper cups, pennies, paper airplanes and other tokens of affection, the steadfast cheerleaders and the Willie Wildkit squad braved the elements this year in their efforts to encourage enthusiasm at all team sports events.

'Student apathy!,' cry homeroom officers, referring to the waste paper that the cheerleaders are pommelled with. 'School spirit!,' cry the cheerleaders themselves as they run out onto the field at the start of the game, remaining throughout the entire events.

Sponsored by Mrs. Carole Pongonis, cheerleaders managed to participate in every sports event and at sports assemblies. They spent hours of practice on their yells and worked closely with yell leaders in preparation for the games. Cheerleader co-captains were Marsha Avery and Ann Betterly.

Girls can be cheerleaders only two out of their last three years of school. Each girl must try out again each year if she wants to continue on the squad.

The Willie Wildkit squad worked closely with the cheerleaders this year. Willie was present at all sports events and activities, although he was somewhat more protected than the cheerleaders by his mane.

Sponsored by Mrs. Marilyn Kemp and captained by Vicki Seglin, Willie Wildkits were required to maintain at least a 3.5 average and were chosen on the basis of creativity and spirit.

Field Day, Tea, Movie, Prom Highlight

Mark Galban, Nancy Davidson, Barbara Lynn, and Chris Shafer, winners of the tricycle race, grin in triumph at Senior Field Day.

Senior Activities

Suddenly the members of the Class of '67 realized a three-year dream. They were seniors.

It had been a long pull to the top. But the Senior Board, under the leadership of Senior Class President Pete Kenyon, helped make it worth the effort with a series of activities exclusively for seniors.

Egg-tossing tournaments, potato-sack races, and tri-cycle competitions taxed the superior senior intellect at Senior Field Day. Elaborate plans were conceived to blow up Central Council, and seniors distinguished themselves on Shorts Day.

The alumni tea welcomed back ETHS graduates for Christmas, allowing seniors to ask the more experienced about college and career life.

The presentation of the class gift was arranged by the board. Under Pete's direction, student photography enthusiasts shot and edited the senior movie, which premiered on Movie Night. Climaxing the year, the Senior Prom provided a romantic atmosphere for remembering.

Assuming a great deal of responsibility for all-school Homecoming festivities, the board served the entire student body. But its primary function was representing and uniting the 1,013 members of the senior class, the only class level recognized as an independent organization.

Comprised of Senior Class officers, homeroom presidents, and hall council presidents, the Senior Board made the last year at Evanston a memorable one for the Class of '67.

The Class of '67: 'Lost Generation'

The Class of '67 looks back. It was the victim of construction.

Churning, grinding, and screeching cranes, drills, and bulldozers transformed the once airy, green campus into a veritable wrecking field. Student-faculty communication difficulties were aggravated by the racket. Not all were tranquil memories of this last year at Evanston.

For simple lack of square feet, seniors were denied a special student lounge, having to settle in the first-floor cafeteria, and only then for a few periods a day.

They had to bear the responsibility of leading the school through its least glamorous hours, for nursing it through growing pains, and for preparing it for the glory the class of '67 would never share in.

Halls never seemed so narrow. Parking problems were never so severe. Schedules were never so tight. Being the last to graduate from the "old" school carried little distinction.

Yet through every inconvenience and denial, the class of '67 brought recognition to ETHS: 17 members as National Merit Scholarship Semi-finalists, 50 as winners of Letters of Commendation, and 136 as Illinois State Scholarship Semi-finalist.

This "lost generation" of graduates does not know exactly how to remember Evanston. Perhaps each senior has his own little corner of the complex that once registered in his memory for keeps, the front lobby fireplaces, pneumonia alley, auditorium backstage, or a million unimportant places.

Mr. Ralph Potter, Mrs. Betty Jacobson, Mr. Donald Perigo, and Senior Class officers wait to address the Senior Class at its fall assembly.

The End

June 6, 1967
 Here we are at the end of high school - I hope you have much more in college -
 David Fulbright

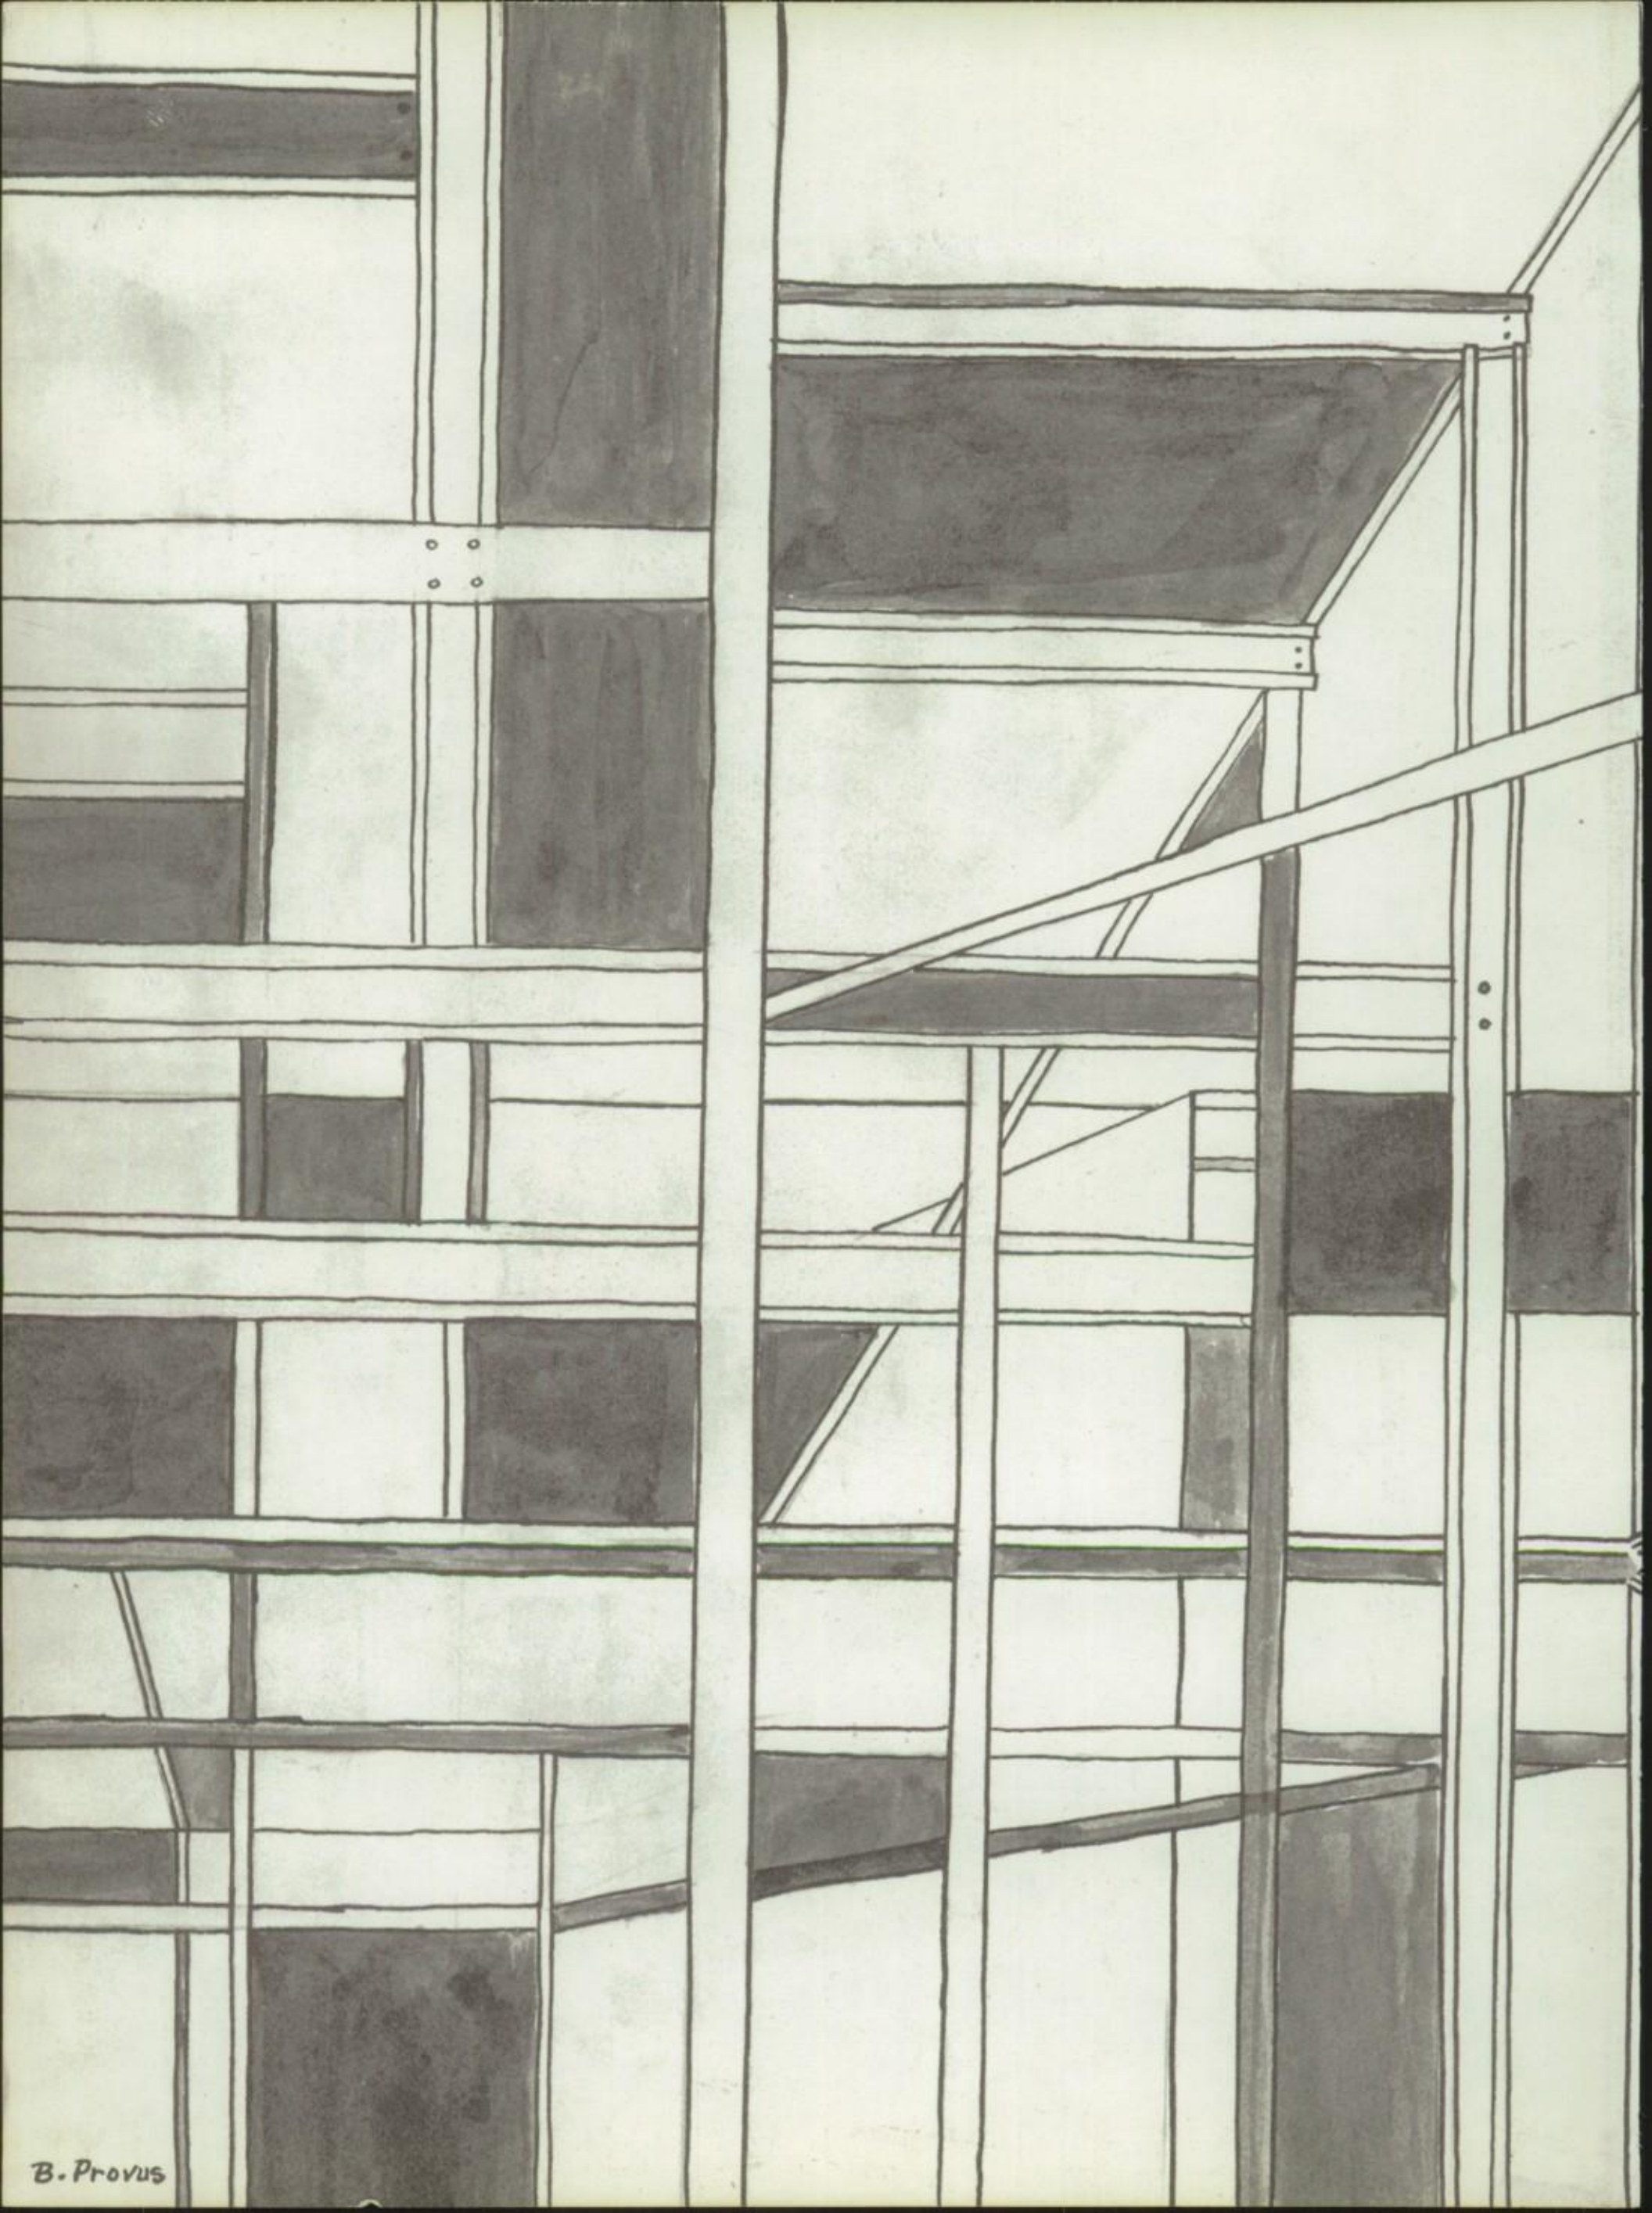

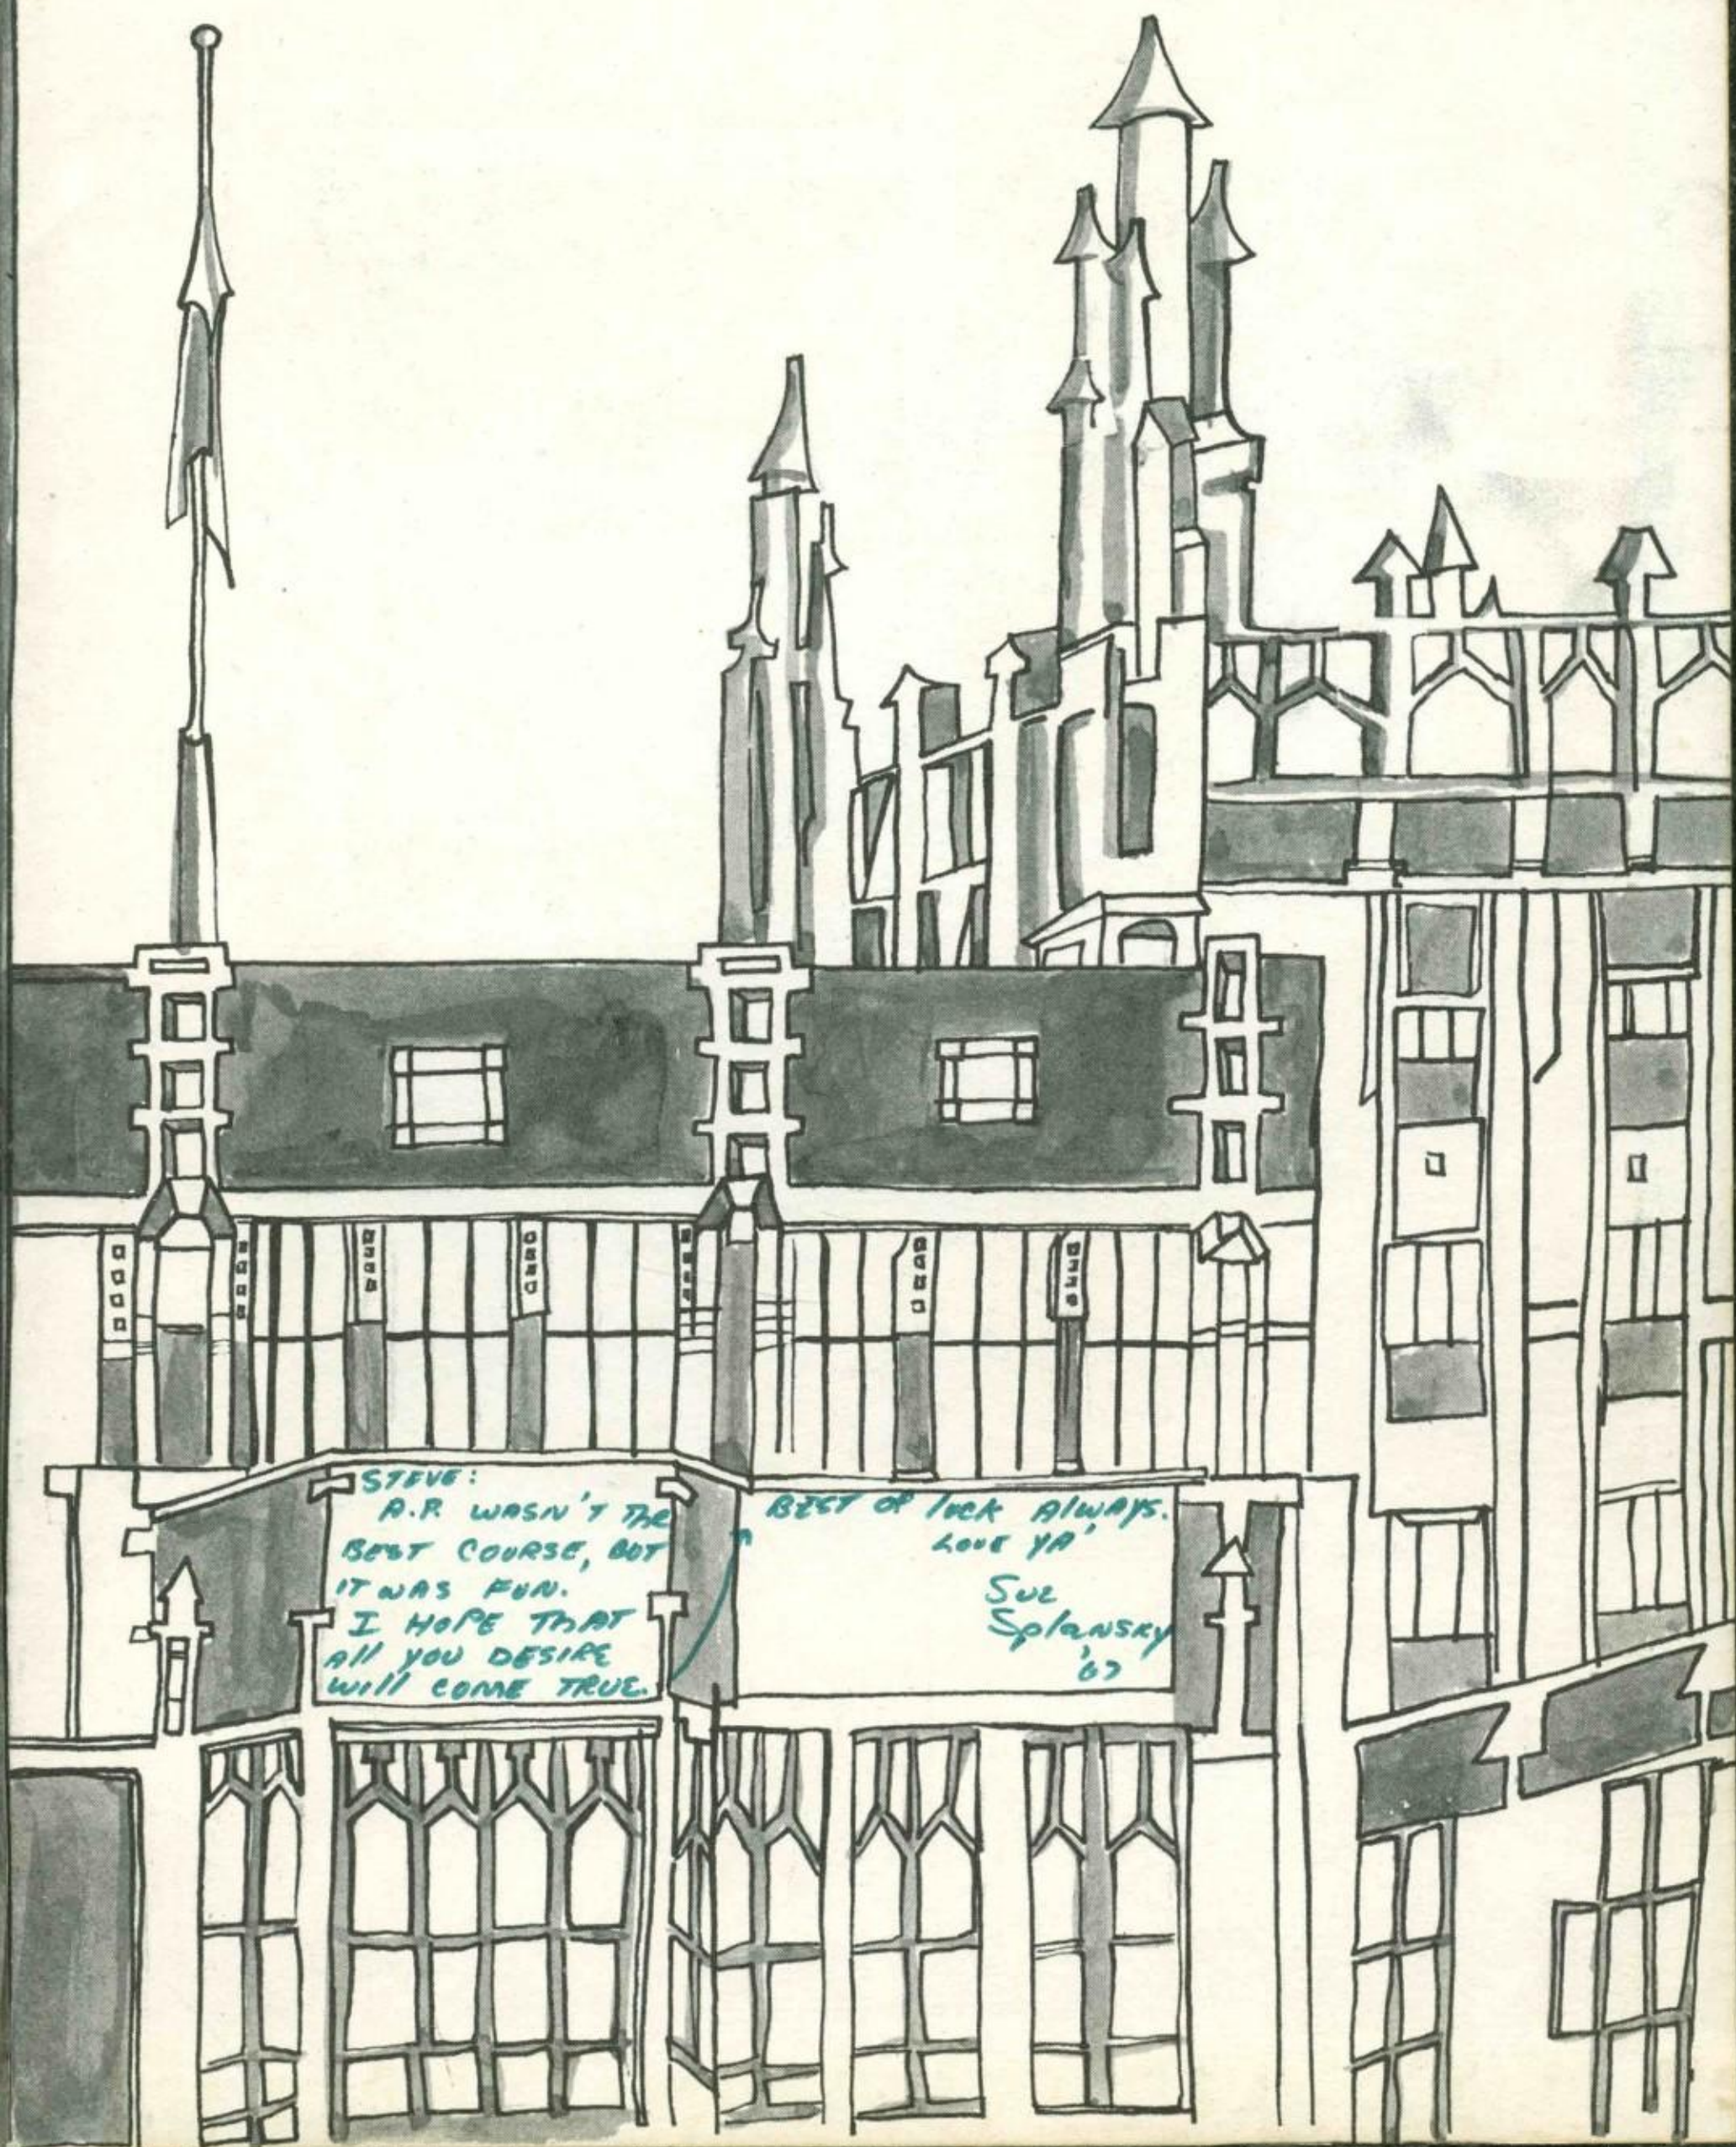

Steve:
It's been great knowing you this year. Have fun at college and whatever you do after that. and please ... don't become a victim of a Brave
New World!

Luv,
Alison Brown
"the quiet one"

STEVE:
A.R. WASN'T THE BEST COURSE, BUT IT WAS FUN.
I HOPE THAT ALL YOU DESIRE
WILL COME TRUE.

BEST OF LUCK ALWAYS.
LOVE YA'
